Preface

A textbook is a main tool for the use of students on a particular subject that is usually developed based on a curriculum to meet its curriculum standards. This ‘English Grade 9’ textbook was developed to address the main aims of Secondary Education. It aligns with the intent pursued by the National Curriculum Framework for School Education, 2076 and was developed fully in accordance with the Secondary Level English Curriculum, 2078. All components of each lesson in the textbook are equally important and they have the specific aim of presentation so as to fulfill the learning outcomes stated in the curriculum.

This textbook, initially prepared by a team that includes Mr. Nim Prakash Singh Rathaur, Mr. Ananda Dhungana and Mr. Pashupati Pandya, has been revised by a team comprising of Dr. Gopal Prasad Pandey, Dr. Neil David Rose, Mr. Ramesh Dhakal, Mr. Shankar Adhikari and Mr. Nabin Khadka. Several people notably; the Director General, Mr. Ana Prasad Neupane, the subject committee chairperson, Prof. Dr. Jib Lal Sapkota and the subject committee members; Prof. Dr. Rishi Ram Rijal, Mr. Madhav Prasad Ghimire, Ms. Maiya Niraula Pokharel and Mr. Tuka Raj Adhikari have contributed significantly on the development of this book. The contribution made by other experts and the practitioners; Mr. Parshu Ram Tiwari and Mr. Matrika Subedi is also appreciated. The illustrations in the book were designed by Ms. Shaili Malla and Kushal Adhikari. Art editing of this textbook in its four-coloured version was done by Shreehari Shrestha. The Curriculum Development Centre extends sincere gratitude to all of them. With the view that the learning of English should be based on authentic materials, we have retrieved and adapted the texts and tasks including the audios from various authentic sources. Therefore, the Centre would like to extend its acknowledgements to all of them.

This textbook may be used to deliver the foundation for the content of the curriculum, the balance of skills to be taught and the types of language practice the students are to take part in. However, teachers can adapt the contents and tasks as per the need and context of their individual students. This textbook can be used as the primary resource for classroom teaching but teachers are encouraged to make use of their own resources to supplement the language learning of their students. The Curriculum Development Centre always welcomes constructive feedback for the betterment of its publications.

Getting started

Look at the pictures and talk about them.

Reading I

Look at the picture and answer the questions.

- What do you think the man in the picture is doing?
- Are you planning to travel or go on a holiday this year?

Poon Hill Yoga Trek in Nepal

The Poon Hill Yoga Trek provides a wonderful opportunity to witness the beauty of the Annapurna Range and the hidden treasures of Nepali culture. This programme will help you integrate the principles of Yoga into your daily life with magnificent views of snow-capped Himalayas and glaciers. The main benefit of joining this programme is that it supports and encourages a deep personal transformation process. This adventure journey passes through many tourist hotspots and icy waterfalls which are very pleasant sights.

Introducing Hatha Yoga and meditation alongside a trekking experience allows ample benefits for physical and mental health. The combination of Yoga and the Poon Hill Trek creates a more fulfilling physical exercise while strengthening and opening the mind for greater relaxation and awareness, all within the attractive natural environment.

This programme is open for all experience levels and is a unique chance for those interested in the strengthening of the body, mind and soul. This may be the short Yoga holiday you have always wished for providing an opportunity for you to explore Nepali lifestyle and the secrets to happiness of the Nepali people.

Main Highlights

Visitors will be astonished by adorable landscapes and the enchanting environment. Gazing at stunning views of the Himalayas and savouring delicious Nepali meals is really incredible. They will be attracted by different Nepali cultures, the diverse flora and fauna, numerous perennial rivers and suspension bridges, and spectacular sunrise and sunset views over high Himalayas will certainly encourage everyone to self-transform with Yoga and meditation.

Itinerary

Day 01: Arrival in Kathmandu

We will welcome you at the airport and provide a transfer to the centre. We will also discuss the programme. Finally, we will be staying overnight at the centre.

Day 02: Transfer to Pokhara

The first activity is to drive to Pokhara in the morning. A standard micro bus or a tourist bus will take about 4-5 hours. This bus ride passes along through the hilly winding road alongside the Trishuli River having great views of the river, forests and terraced fields. We will stay overnight in Pokhara.

Day 03: Pokhara – Tikhedhunga

We wake up early in the morning and have tea before Yoga. We practise Yoga for an hour. Then, it is time for breakfast. After breakfast, we drive to Nayapul. We start our trek towards Tikhedhunga. On the trek, we pass through several towns. We will reach Tikhedhunga and we will be staying there overnight.

Day 04: Tikhedhunga – Banthanti

After tea, Yoga and breakfast in the morning; we start our trek towards Banthanti. On the way, we cross a stream over a suspension bridge. We will be trekking to a Magar village which is called Ulleri. Above the village where the trail climbs gently through the cultivated fields, rhododendron and oak forests, we will stop at Nanethanti for lunch and a short rest. After lunch we will start walking towards Banthanti through the beautiful forest. Finally, we do evening Yoga, have some relaxation and sleep in Banthanti.

Day 05: Banthanti – Ghorepani

As soon as we wake up in the morning, we will have tea and then join the Yoga class. After breakfast, we will start our hike towards Ghorepani, exploring the local culture, landscapes and mountains. After we engage in Yoga there will be some entertainment, we will then take dinner, and stay overnight in Ghorepani.

Day 06: Ghorepani – Poon Hill

We will wake up early in the morning and go for one hour hike to Poon Hill where we can enjoy panoramic mountain views and a beautiful sunrise. Then, we will trek down to Ghorepani and have breakfast. From there we begin our trek to Tadapani, which translated means far water supply in this village from long distance. The trail climbs along ridges and through pine and rhododendron forests to Deurali. Then, it descends to reach Banthanti; we reach Tadapani, and take part in Yoga in the evening. We will be accommodated overnight in a tourist lodge.

Day 07: Tadapani – Ghandruk – Pokhara

We will wake up in the morning and practise Yoga. After Yoga, we will have breakfast. Then, our trek continues towards Ghandruk. After walking for around four hours, we reach Ghandruk, a Gurung village which is the most interesting ethnic village in Nepal, famous for its Gorkha soldiers. It has excellent close-up views of Annapurna South and Machhapuchhre Himalayas. After lunch, we drive back to Pokhara via Nayapul. We will stay overnight in Pokhara.

Day 08: Departure

We will leave for the next destination in the morning after breakfast.

Getting started

Reading I

Before you read the interview below, answer these questions.

- How do you get advice from a doctor?
- What do you know about telehealth services?

The Acceleration behind Telehealth Services

(In this interview, Chun-Kai Chang , the Business Development Manager of Telehealth at Advantech, talks to News-Medical about the acceleration behind telehealth services.)

Reporter : To begin, can you give us a brief introduction into telehealth and what it involves?

Chang : Telehealth is a method of providing medical care remotely, usually through video chat. Telehealth makes it possible to connect patients and clinicians from any location. It provides access to a wide range of care, including primary care consultations, psychotherapy, physical therapy, and even emergency services. It allows primary care clinicians and specialists to further their reach for treating patients wherever there is an internet connection.

The benefits of telehealth for healthcare providers and patients is that these services can be faster, safer, more effective, and less expensive in the long run, especially during a time like the COVID-19 pandemic, where telehealth has allowed access to medical care without going to hospitals to protect patients and hospital staff from being exposed to the infection.

Reporter : What are some of the main drivers behind the acceleration and momentum of telehealth services?

Chang : There are two major drivers for this fast-growing market. The first and most recent driver for telehealth has been the global COVID-19 pandemic. Strong social distancing and minimal physical contact precautions have pushed the shift to telehealth and remote consultations as it aids in infection protection.

These precautions and increased hospital bed shortages have forced medical facilities to incorporate more telehealth technologies to keep up with demand and maintain care continuity for patients at home.

The second driver is the shortage of medical professionals when demand is increasing every year due to an aging population and more and more patients with chronic and non-communicable diseases. For people living in rural areas, their medical demands are underserved due to insufficient resources and long distances to drive into cities for care. Telehealth is one of the promising ways to tackle the challenge of doctor shortages and expand specialists and doctors' reach to patients.

Reporter : In terms of this acceleration and momentum of telehealth services, we are currently seeing, what are some items we can expect to see in the future?

Chang : Telehealth will not replace face to face care services, but we will incorporate it into healthcare facilities' infrastructure. Patients will be selecting providers based on their accessibility to telehealth services. With more access to doctors, increasing patients using preventative care services and follow-up care due to convenience will start to emerge. These can lead to fewer readmissions and patient complications. We will also see more use for early screening of patient triage in the field before they arrive at hospitals.

Reporter : When it comes to remote patient monitoring for clinicians, what impact does telehealth have on this?

Chang : Remote patient monitoring could be one of the applications of telehealth. Remote patient monitoring usually involves continuously collecting patient's health data through wearable devices, such as vital signs and blood sugars. The patient's data is then transmitted in real-time, monitored, and reviewed by medical providers.

In this way, medical providers could acquire a whole picture of a patient's health condition and give a more precise diagnosis.

Reporter : How has telehealth shaped the way clinicians work with each other?

Chang : Clinician-to-clinician telehealth services have enabled medical professionals to collaborate virtually with specialists in other locations to deliver treatment and care to patients jointly. This service can range from remote surgical mentoring to Tele-ICU and Tele-ER (like a stroke), in which on-site staff work together with a remote physician/specialist team to assess patient's condition. Telehealth solutions relieve the pressure of staffing gaps seen in critical departments such as an emergency room and ICU.

Reporter : What would you say are some of the biggest challenges clinicians currently face with telehealth?

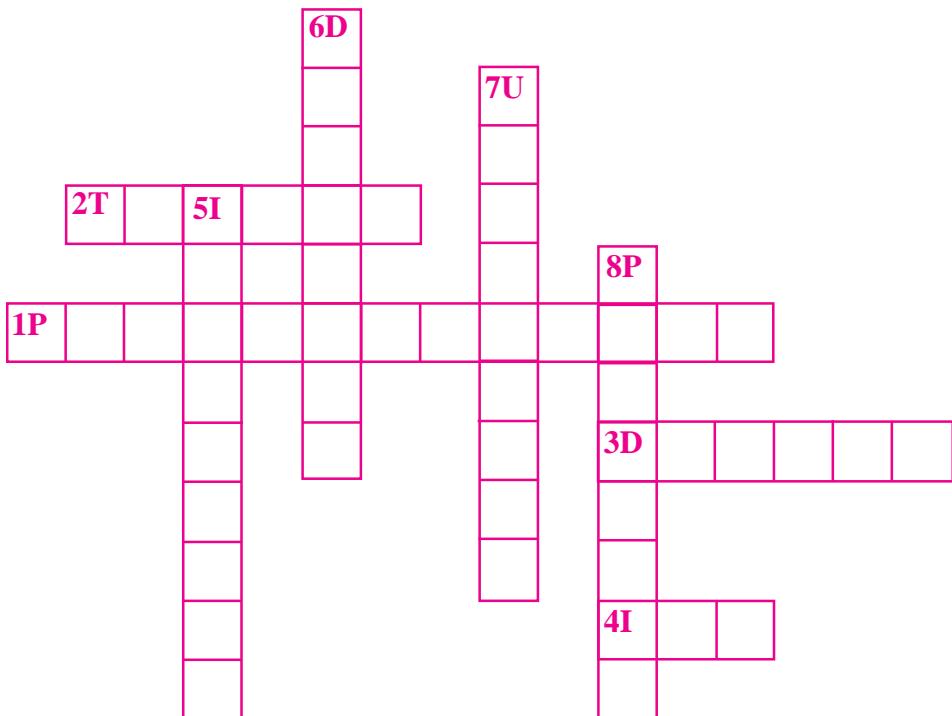

Chang : Many hospitals are still facing the lack of infrastructure to English 9 implement telehealth successfully, insufficient hardware, and the right technology for each specialty. Some hospitals struggle with reliable networking infrastructures like broadband, 4G, or Wi-Fi. This could limit the connectivity within facilities and provide remote care to rural areas or mobile clinics. Having the right technology and tools, and place will be crucial to successful telehealth programs.

Even though this new technology is quickly being integrated, there is a learning curve to using telehealth versus traditional healthcare operations. Users face obstacles such as learning to use different tools, online scheduling for virtual visits, triage procedures, and billing policies.

To overcome these challenges, telehealth should be encouraged as a regular service and included in health insurance. There would be more motives for healthcare providers to invest in infrastructures and information system integration and deploy telehealth technology.

Reading II

Look at the picture and answer these questions.

- Who do you think the person in the picture is; a king or a wrestler? Why?
- How has he put on so much weight?
- Do you think he is healthy?

Health is Wealth

Once upon a time, there lived a benevolent and kind-hearted king. But, the people weren't happy with him because he was very lazy and would not do anything other than eating and sleeping.

He spent days, weeks and months in his bed either eating something or sleeping. The king became a couch potato and the people started to worry about him.

One day, the king realised that he couldn't move his body, not even his foot. He became very large and his obesity became a matter of fun, calling him 'bulky king'.

The king invited expert doctors from various parts of his country and offered them generous rewards to make him fit. Unfortunately, none could help him gain his health and fitness back. The king spent an enormous amount of money but everything went in vain.

One fine morning, a holy man visited the country. He heard about the ill-health of the king, and informed the minister at the palace that he could easily cure the king. Hearing these promising words, the minister became very happy. He requested the king to meet the holy man to get rid of his problem.

The holy man resided at a distant place. Since the king could not move his body, he asked the minister to bring the holy man to the palace, but the holy man refused. He said that the king had to go to him, in order to get cured.

After strenuous efforts, the king met the holy man at the latter's residence. The holy man complimented the king saying that he was a good ruler, and said that he would soon regain his health. He asked the king to come for treatment the next day. He also told the king would be treated only if he came on foot to the holy man's residence.

The king was unable to walk even a few steps on the road, but aided by his followers, he reached the holy man's place. Unfortunately, the holy man was not available there and his devotee requested the king to come and meet him the next day for treatment.

This was repeated for two weeks and the king never met the holy man, and never had any treatment.

Gradually, the king realised that he felt a lot lighter, lost a considerable amount of weight and felt more active than before. He realised the reason why the holy man asked him to reach his place by walking.

Very soon, the king regained his health, and the people were very happy in his kingdom.

- What do you see in the picture?
- What is more important for you; family or work or both? Why?

Thomas and Jerry

Once upon a time in a village, there was an old man named Jerry. He hadn't seen his son who lived in the city for a few years and wanted to meet him. He started his journey and came to the city where his son used to work and stay. He approached the place where he used to get letters from a long time ago. When he knocked on the door he was excited and smiled with joy to meet his son. Unfortunately, someone else opened the door. Jerry asked, "I suppose Thomas should be staying in this place." The person said, "No! He has left and moved to a different location." Jerry was disappointed and just pondered how he was going to meet his son.

He started to walk down the street and the neighbours asked Jerry, “Are you looking for Thomas?” Jerry responded by nodding his head. The neighbours gave Thomas’s office address to Jerry. Jerry thanked them and started towards the path which would lead to his son. Finally, Jerry arrived at the office and asked at the reception counter, “Could you please tell me Thomas’s location, in this office?” The receptionist asked, “May I know how you are related to him?” Jerry responded politely by saying, “I’m his father.” The receptionist asked Jerry to wait for a moment then rang Thomas and conveyed the message. Thomas was stunned and told the receptionist to send his father to the cabin immediately.

Jerry entered the cabin. As soon as he saw Thomas, his eyes were filled with tears. Thomas was happy to see his father. They talked for a while and Jerry asked Thomas, “Son! Mom dearly wants to see you. Will you go home with me?”

Thomas responded, “I’m afraid, I can’t go home, father. I am very busy working for my success and it’s hard to take leave to visit as my hands are full with lots of stressful work.” Jerry gave a simple smile and said, “Okay! You may do your work. I’ll be going back to our village this evening.” Thomas asked, “Would you stay for a few days with me, please?” Jerry responded after a moment of silence, “Son, you are busy with your tasks. I don’t want to make you uncomfortable or become a burden for you,” he continued, “I hope if I ever had a chance to meet you again, I would be happy.” Then, he departed.

After a few weeks, Thomas wondered why his father came alone after a long time, he felt bad for treating his father in a weird manner. He felt guilty so took leave for a few days and went to his village to meet his parents. When he went to the place where he was born and grew up, he saw that his parents were not there. He was shocked and asked the neighbours, “What happened here? My parents have to be here. Where are they now?” The neighbours gave the address of the place where his parents were staying.

Thomas scurried to the place and noticed that it was like a graveyard. His eyes were filled with tears and started to walk slowly towards the place. His father noticed Thomas in the distance and waved his hand to draw his attention. Thomas saw his father; started to run and hugged him as soon as they met.

Jerry asked, "How are you?" and continued, "What a surprise to see you here. I didn't expect that you would be coming to this place." Thomas felt ashamed and kept his head down. Jerry said, "Why are you feeling bad? Has anything wrong happened?" Thomas responded, "No father" he continued, "It's just I never knew that I would be seeing you in this position in our village."

Jerry smiled and said, "I had taken a loan when you moved to the city for your college to pay for your education, then again when you wanted a new car. But due to a loss in farming, I couldn't pay the loan back. I thought of approaching you for help, but you were very busy and bustled with your work. I didn't want to burden you with our problem and remained silent. I had to let our home to go repay the loan."

Thomas whispered, "You could've told me. I'm not an outsider." Jerry turned around and said, "You were very busy and stressed with your work which made me remain quiet. All we wanted was your happiness."

Thomas started to cry and hugged his father again. He apologised to his father and asked him to forgive him for his mistake. Jerry radiated and said, "No need for that. I'm content with what I have now. All I want is that you spare some time for us, we love you very much and at this old age it's hard to travel to see you often."

Reading II

A. Look at the pictures and answer these questions.

- a. What type of dance are they performing?
b. In which parts of Nepal are they most popular?

Dance

The first time I went to a disco I was very young and shy. However, I decided to go. Do you remember the Star Disco in Thamel? It was a lovely place..... always full of beautiful girls. Of course, most of them are grandmothers now!

When I went to the disco, I was much too shy to ask anyone for a dance. So I sat down and thought I'd watch for a while. You know, see how the other lads did it. There was a lovely girl in a blue dress. A man walked up to her and said, "Excuse me. May I have the pleasure of the next dance?" She looked up at him and said "Eh? What did you say?" So he said, "I wonder if you would be kind enough to dance with me?.....er....if you don't mind?" "No, thank you very much."

A few minutes later, this other chap arrived. He gave her this big smile and said, "Would you be so kind as to have the next dance with me?" "Pardon?" she said. "Would you mind having the next dance with me?" he said, a bit nervously this time, "No thanks."

Then, this third fellow came over. He was very good-looking, you know, black teeth, white hair- sorry, I mean white teeth, black hair! He said, ever so politely, "Can I....I mean...could I.... no, might I have the next dance with you?" "Sorry", she said, "My feet are aching."

By now, I was terrified. I mean, she'd said 'no' to all of them! Then this fourth character thought he'd try. "Would you like to dance?" She looked straight at him. "No."

Well, I decided to go home. I was wearing an old jacket and trousers, and nobody would say that I was good-looking! Just as I was walking past her, she smiled. "Er... dance?" I asked. "Thank you very much," she replied. And that was that! It's our twentieth wedding anniversary next week.

Getting started

Look at these pictures and discuss.

How do you respond to people in these situations?

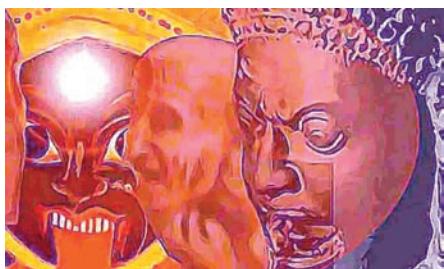

Reading I

Do you agree with the following statements? Discuss.

- Death is not the opposite of life, but a part of it.
- From the day you were born, you are slowly dying.

Death is a Fiction

Did you ever see somebody who actually died and came back? No. There may be a near death experience. Near is not good enough. Near water is not as good enough as water, isn't it? So, some people have nearly died, that is not good enough.

So you have not experienced it, you have not seen it, nor have you had a first-hand information from anybody. So from where did you get this idea that there is something called as death? Death is a fiction created by ignorant people. Death is the creation of people who live their lives in total unawareness. There is only life, life and life alone, moving from one dimension to another, another dimension to another.

See, what you call as life right now, the process of life; you can also refer to it as death. You can say “I am living right now” or you can say “I am dying right now.” Actually, from the day you are born you are slowly dying. One day the process will be complete. Right now it is on the way. You may be thinking you are going to many places, but as far as your body is concerned, without a moment’s distraction, it is going straight to the grave, nowhere else. Isn’t it so?

So, is death okay or not okay? Even these kinds of questions which are coming up are silly, because whether you say it is okay or not okay, anyway you will die. Every moment you are playing between life and death and life and death – actually it is so. This inhalation, exhalation... You inhaled, life happened. You exhaled and did not inhale again, death happened, isn’t it? See, every moment in Yoga we say inhalation is life, exhalation is death. You exhale, and if you do not take in the next inhalation it dislodges you from the body. So fragile, isn’t it so? Something so fragile is the basis of your existence here. Death is walking with you every step. It is so close all the time.

There is nothing wrong with death; it has to happen. Only because there is death, there is life. You need to understand that the moment you are born, you have a death sentence upon you. When, where, and how is the only question, but you are on death row. Your death is confirmed, isn’t it? We do not know whether you will get educated or not; we do not know whether you will get married or not; we do not know whether you will know joy or not; we do not know whether you will know misery or not; but we know one day you will die. That one thing is guaranteed.

This whole fear of death has come simply because you have no idea what it is. You have formed ideas about everything, just about everything. But it does not matter what ideas you have formed about life, when you are confronted with the moment of death, you really do not know anything. That is one space of life which has remained uncorrupted by the human mind. Everything else we have corrupted, isn’t it? Whatever was supposed to be sacred, all these things are hugely corrupted by the human mind. Human minds have corrupted love, relationships, God, Divinity – everything they have corrupted and twisted out whichever way they want. Death is one thing that they are still clueless about–though a lot of people would like to talk authoritatively about it. They know they are going to go to heaven; they are dead sure about it. If they are so sure, I don't see what they are waiting for.

They are doing everything not to go to heaven. Why? If you are so sure you are going to a wonderful place, a better place than this, and then you must hurry up. But because you are not sure, you talk. You are not 100% sure where you will go, what will happen to you. Just to solace yourself, just to be able to psychologically handle life, you create all these things. But essentially, the very idea of death has come to you because people have been talking about it without knowing about it. Otherwise, if your societies did not speak about it, you would just know the way you are right now, your present existence, is not permanent. That you would know, but you would not have any other ideas about it. Even now you do not have any idea about it; you imagine that you have.

- A. Study the following newspaper message of condolence and underline the key expressions that are used when writing.

HEARTFELT CONDOLENCE

05-10-1977 16-05-2013

We are deeply saddened by the news of the untimely demise of our veteran Mountaineering Member Mr. Namgyal Sherpa, a ten time Everest summiteer, while descending back from summit to Base Camp on 16th May, 2013. He was quite popular for his congeniality, diligence and great virtue. At this time of grief, we want to express our sincere condolences to his bereaved family and pray for the strength to bear this irrecoverable loss. We will always cherish his wonderful memories.
May the departed soul rest in peace in heavenly abode.

Reading II

Look at the picture below and answer these questions.

- a. What does the picture show?
- b. Where is the pilot leading the voyagers?

Crossing the Bar

Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea,

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,

Too full for sound and foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep
Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark;

For tho' from out our bourne of Time and Place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crost the bar.

-Alfred Lord Tennyson

A. Match the words in column A with their meanings in column B.

Column A	Column B
a. moaning	i. a boundary; a limit
b. boundless	ii. though
c. twilight	iii. go on board
d. embark	iv. never-ending; infinite
e. tho'	v. complaining
f. bourne	vi. crossed
g. crost	vii. dusk

B. Fill in the gaps with the words/phrases given below to complete the paraphrase of the poem.

the sandbar return the evening bell floating

the sunset and evening star on a tide sad goodbyes God

I notice..... in the sky, and hear a sound calling for me loud and clear. I hope thatwill not be disturbed when I go out to sea.

Instead, I want to be carried out..... moving so slowly it seems almost asleep, and which is too swollen to make a sound. That's what I want when I..... home to the depths of the great unknown.

Twilight comes with....., which will be followed by darkness. There don't need to be any when I go.

Even though I'll be going far from this time and place,.....on the tide of death, I hope to meet....., who has been like my pilot in this journey, when I've made it across the bar.

C. Answer the following questions.

- a. Where does the speaker have to go crossing the sandbar?
 - b. Why can't the tide make a huge sound or create a lather?
 - c. What do the twilight and the evening bell suggest in the poem?
 - d. Where is the speaker going without accepting sad goodbyes?
 - e. Who is the only agent that helps the speaker to go far on his journey?
 - f. Does the speaker fear death? Why/Why not?
 - g. What does the pilot symbolise?
- D. The speaker tries to convey that finally good things remain with him before he sets off his ultimate journey to the sea. 'Sea' is taken as something blank, unknown and as an unpredictable world after death. Do you believe in life after death? Discuss.

Informing you about my accident

Dear Salina,

I'm writing to explain to you that I can't attend the class for two weeks as I've had an accident and hurt my back. I have already sent an email to the principal and the class teacher to inform of my condition. I'm afraid I will be missing the unit tests.

I have medicine for the pain but I can't get up or walk around much, and the doctor said I should stay in bed and rest as much as possible. This makes reading and studying very difficult for me at the moment. The doctor said I may be able to do some bed reading and writing after a week.

Salina, if possible I need some help from you. I wonder if you could record the lectures and class notes so that I can listen to them at home. I will try to catch up with all the reading too. I have been given permission from the principal.

I won't bore you with details, except to say that I will be missing you all, my friends and dear teachers. But just see it as a setback for a while-then hopefully life will be normal again.

Thank you for your understanding.

Regards,

Asmita Praja

Types of Sentence

- A. Declarative Sentence: A declarative sentence simply makes a statement or expresses an opinion. In other words, it makes a declaration. This kind of sentence ends with a full stop.

Examples:

My mother's name is Laxmi.

I'm not watching a football match now.

- B. Interrogative Sentence: An interrogative sentence asks a question. This type of sentence often begins with a 'wh' word or an auxiliary verb and ends with a question mark.

Examples:

Why are you late today?

Have you booked the hall for tomorrow's programme?

- C. Imperative Sentence: An imperative sentence gives a command or makes a request. It usually ends with a full stop.

Examples:

Complete the homework by tomorrow.

Be polite to the customers.

Don't make a noise.

- D. Exclamatory Sentence: An exclamatory sentence expresses great emotion such as excitement, surprise, happiness and anger, and uses an exclamation mark.

Examples:

Oh! I forgot about the meeting.

Wow! I can't believe it.

Getting started

Look at the pictures and talk to your friend about their professional ethics, norms and values.

Reading I

Look at the picture and answer the questions.

- What does it say?
- How do you apologise? Talk to your friends.

Why “I’m Sorry” Doesn’t Always Translate

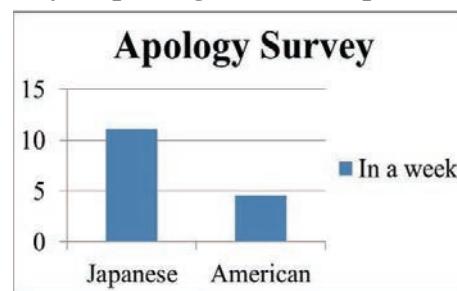

Even after decades of cooperation in business and politics, America and Japan still trip over a seemingly simple concept: the apology. Neither culture appears to fully understand what the other means or expects. For instance, most Americans were unmoved by Toyota CEO Akio Toyoda’s effusive apologies in 2010, after widespread reports of malfuctioning Prius accelerators. Japan, for its part, bristled when a US submarine commander didn't immediately apologise after colliding with and sinking a Japanese fishing boat off Hawaii in 2001.

The confusion over the meaning of and occasion for “I’m sorry” extends beyond those countries; indeed, it seems that virtually every culture has its own rules. In India, other researchers have noted, apologies are far less common than in Japan. In Hong Kong, they are so prevalent and ritualised that many people are inured to them.

Our own work found that a core issue is differing perceptions of culpability: Americans see an apology as an admission of wrongdoing, whereas Japanese see it as an expression of eagerness to repair a damaged relationship, with no culpability necessarily implied. And this difference, we discovered, affects how much traction an apology gains.

In an initial survey of US and Japanese undergraduates, the US students were more likely to say that an apology directly implied guilt. The Japanese students were more likely to apologise even when they weren’t personally responsible for what had happened. Perhaps for this reason, they apologised a lot more; they recalled issuing an average of 11.05 apologies in the previous week, whereas US students recalled just 4.51.

In a second study, we looked at the utility of apologies for repairing trust. We asked undergraduates from both countries to imagine that they were managers and showed them a video in which an applicant for an accounting job apologised for having deliberately filed an incorrect tax return for a prior client. The Japanese students were more willing than their US counterparts to trust the candidate’s assertion that she wouldn’t engage in such behavior again and to offer her a job. We believe that this is owing to Americans’ inclination to associate apologies with culpability.

The finding that Americans link apologies with blame is in keeping, we’d argue, with a psychological tendency among Westerners to attribute events to individuals’ actions. Thus it makes sense that in the US an apology is taken to mean “I am the one who is responsible.” It also stands to reason that in Japan which, like many other East Asian countries, has a more group-oriented culture; apologies are heard as “It is unfortunate that this happened.” Researchers who’ve compared apologies in America and China have found a similar pattern: US apologies serve to establish personal responsibility, while Chinese ones focus on the larger consequences of the transgression.

Only with a deep understanding of such differences, the executives can make effective use of the apology as a tool for facilitating negotiations, resolving conflicts, and repairing trust. And misunderstandings over apologies are just one aspect of a broad semantic disconnect between East and West that’s too often ignored in the rush to globalisation. Managers would do well to tune in to other cultural nuances that are easily lost in translation.

Writing I

A. Read the interpretation of the pie charts.

Households by Ownership of Houses in Nepal

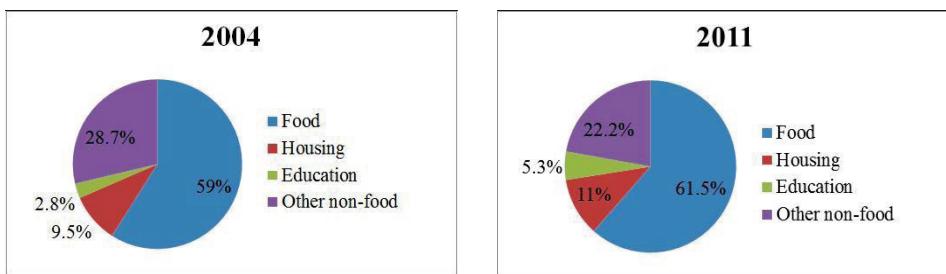

The above pie charts show the comparability of home ownership, rented and others in Nepal between rural and urban sectors. In rural areas, 92% of families have their own houses and only 6% of households live in rented houses. Only 2% of families spend their life without owning and renting houses.

On the contrary, 57% of families have their own houses and 40% of families live in rented houses in town areas. More than one third of families stay in rented house in cities. 3% of urban families do not have their own houses and they do not stay in rented houses, either.

Comparing the rural and urban areas, the number of house owners is less in towns than in villages. But, there is a big gap between urban and rural areas where families rent houses. The percentage of the families who live in rented houses is more than six times in the urban areas than rural ones. But, the number of families who stay outside the owned and rented houses is similar in both the areas.

- B. The pie charts below show the information about household expenditure in Nepal in 2004 and 2011. Write an interpretation of the charts making comparisons where necessary.

Reading II

Do you agree with the following statements? Discuss.

- Apologising doesn't always mean you're wrong and the other person is right.
- Great people apologise when they realise they have made a mistake.

Dear JetBlue Customers,

We are sorry and embarrassed. But most of all, we are deeply sorry.

Last week was the worst operational week in JetBlue's seven year history. As a customer scheduled to be on one of our flights during this period, we know we let you down. Following the severe winter ice storm in the Northeast, we subjected you to unacceptable delays, flight cancellations, lost baggage, and other major inconveniences. The storm disrupted the movement of aircraft, and, more importantly, disrupted the movement of JetBlue's pilot and inflight crewmembers who were depending on those planes to get them to the airports where they were scheduled to serve you. With the busy President's Day weekend upon us, rebooking opportunities were scarce and hold times at 1-800-JETBLUE were unacceptably long or not even available, further hindering our recovery efforts.

Words cannot express how truly sorry we are for the anxiety, frustration and inconvenience that you experienced. This is especially saddening because JetBlue was founded on the promise of bringing humanity back to air travel and making the experience of flying happier and easier for everyone who chooses to fly with us. We know we failed to deliver on this promise to you last week.

We have begun implementing immediate corrective steps to regain your confidence in us as part of a comprehensive plan to provide better and timelier information to you, more tools and resources for our crewmembers and improved procedures for handling operational difficulties in the future. We are confident, as a result of these actions that JetBlue will emerge as a more reliable and even more customer responsive airline than ever before.

Most importantly, we have published the JetBlue Airways Customer Bill of Rights; our official commitment to you of how we will handle operational interruptions going forward including details of compensation. I have a video message to share with you about this industry leading action.

You deserved better, a lot better, from us last week. Nothing is more important than regaining your trust and all of us here hope you will give us the opportunity to once again welcome you onboard and provide you the positive JetBlue experience you have come to expect from us.

Sincerely,
David Neeleman
Founder and CEO JetBlue Airways

Simple, Compound and Complex Sentence

- a. A simple sentence contains a subject and a verb. It expresses a single complete thought that can stand on its own.

Examples:

The baby cried for food.

Megan and Ron ate too much and felt sick.

- b. A compound sentence has two independent clauses. An independent clause is a part of a sentence that can stand alone because it contains a subject and a verb and expresses a complete thought. Basically, a compound sentence contains two simple sentences. The independent clauses are joined by a conjunction (for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so).

Examples:

The shoplifter had stolen clothes, so he ran once he saw the police.

They spoke to him in Spanish, but he responded in English.

- c. A complex sentence contains an independent clause and one or more dependent clauses. A dependent clause either lacks a subject or a verb or has both a subject and a verb that does not express a complete thought. - A complex sentence always has a subordinator (as, because, since, after, although, when) or relative pronouns (who, that, which).

Examples:

After eating lunch at The Rose Garden, Tapas went to the gym to exercise.

Because the meat had gone cold, I heated it on the gas stove.

Let's get back to the ground where we played football.

Getting started

Look at the pictures and talk about them.

Reading I

Answer these questions.

- Describe death rituals in your culture.
- Why do you think it is important?

Sky Burials

Sky Burials are traditional custom in Tibetan Buddhism to say farewell to their dead. These days, outsiders are mostly forbidden from witnessing them.

I had heard of Tibetan Sky Burials with a mixture of horror and fascination. To put it bluntly, a dead body is chopped up into pieces and fed to waiting vultures.

So, we arrived at a very isolated and traditional Tibetan Buddhist monastery near Tagong in North Eastern Sichuan. I thought, "let's just look at the site where it happens".

We'd been told that foreigners were not allowed to experience the secret ritual anyway.

Our driver directed us up to the top of the mountain where the burials take place. It was surrounded by a sea of Tibetan prayer flags and you could just make out a kind of stone slab.

So we hiked up there. Upon arriving, we could hear Tibetan nuns chanting. "How lovely?" I thought.

Then I turned and saw about 100 vultures sitting on the hill, waiting and then, what looked like a body bag on the stone slab.

I actually couldn't believe it. "Have we stumbled into the start of a sky burial?" Through a translation app I asked one of the Tibetans next to me what was happening.

"Flesh eating birds," he replied.

"Oh, can we stay?" I asked.

"Yes, but on the side and no photos," he replied.

"This is amazing," I thought, but then I saw my kids. My wife and I had to make quick decisions.

We gave our six-year-old son the iPad to play computer games. He was thrilled, and we had never before been so happy to give it to him. He was too young to see this.

As for my 11-year-old son and my 13-year-old daughter, my wife Catherine quickly sat them down and told them what was about to happen and said it was their choice to stay or go.

We gave it to them straight, but told them the cultural and religious context.

To their credit they stayed. I was nervous. The first time I'd seen a dead body when I was 12 and it had a profound effect on me.

Before we knew it, the bag was taken off and the corpse was revealed. It looked like a middle-aged woman.

The Rogyapa, body breaker, stormed up the side of mountain. He was dressed in a thick, dark scarlet coloured coat with a black hood. With a butcher knife in hand, he wasted no time in carving up the body. My stomach sunk. It was gruesome, and I just stopped myself from throwing up. My kids though seemed to take it in their stride.

The vultures were growing impatient and started to jump at site of the flesh. The body breaker gave the signal and the Tibetans holding the birds back let them through.

They swarmed, in a frenzy jumping on top of each other tearing at the flesh. It was unbelievable.

It only took at most 15 minutes and the entire corpse was gone. Every last piece of flesh had been eaten, leaving only the bones behind. Then the body breaker gathered up the human bones and began to pulverise them with a mallet. He mixed that with yak butter and barley flour. In one last gesture, he walked into the middle of the vultures and threw it high in the air. And with that he was gone.

There was absolutely nothing left of the body. It is considered a bad omen if vultures don't eat the body or even if small bits are left.

Tibetans see the vultures as Dakinis, like angels who take soul into the heavens to await reincarnation and the next life. They consider the body as a mere vessel for the soul.

And at the end of it all, a peace and calmness seemed to descend over the scene. Everyone seemed happy that the ritual had been fulfilled.

My kids too, surprisingly, were fine. They seemed to be able to understand it; an ancient culture giving a meaning to lives.

I was a proud dad on that day, proud of their maturity and intelligence.

But as for my six-year-old son, he was none the wiser. He'd been deeply engrossed by his iPad, playing Minecraft the whole time.

Writing I

Write short essay about 'Our Culture Our Pride'.

Reading II

Answer these questions.

- a. Is there any unique custom in your community? What is it?
- b. Why is it unique?

Surprising Customs

One thing that sets humans apart from other members of the animal kingdom is our propensity to develop customs and traditions around everything from beauty rituals to death customs. In fact, humans love doing this so much that the world has been enriched with thousands of different cultures since the dawn of civilization. No doubt, one important aspect of just about any given culture is its code of etiquette and a sense of identity. Here are some astonishing customs from around the world.

Pointing with lips

While gestures of the hand are often subject to customary variation across cultures, few can claim this wonder extends to expressions of the mouth. In Nicaragua, it is common to point with the lips instead of the thumb or index finger like the majority of the world. Wondering just how exactly a person points with their lips? It all starts by puckering up. The lip point is typically used in conversation to indicate something that is happening nearby.

Tipping

Another odd custom associated with the United States is its tipping culture. Unlike many other countries that don't tip at all or who only tip in small amounts when the food was particularly good, tipping is rather mandatory at most restaurants in the US. In fact, it is expected that patrons leave between 10-20 percent of the bill in tips. Further, there are rules for tipping bartenders, delivery people and other service personnel. While some criticise this practice as irrational, there's no doubt that tipping culture in the US gives an incentive for waiters and waitresses to provide better service.

Slurping

Most societies around the world have rules about table etiquette. For western cultures, noisily consuming food is considered rude. In Japan, however, making slurping sounds while eating has an entirely different meaning. This might have something to do with the fact that in western countries, noodles are properly consumed by twirling them on a spoon before putting them in the mouth. Meanwhile, the Japanese simply slurp up their noodles without contorting them first, an act that is naturally noisier than the former. Making slurping sounds when eating noodles in Japan is a way of indicating that you're really enjoying them. Some scientists even argue slurping invites air into the palate and actually enhances the noodles' flavour.

Kneeling or lying prostrate as greeting

For members of the Yoruba people, an ethnic group that largely resides in Nigeria, greeting rituals are taken quite seriously. This is especially true in regards to greeting elders. When an adult approaches, Yoruba youths are expected to drop to their knees in greeting. More specifically, women kneel when greeting, and men typically lie prostrate. These gestures are a sign of respect and deference for the elders of the community. Interestingly, this custom is one that distinguishes Yoruba peoples from other ethnic groups in Nigeria, including the Bini and the Kalabari.

A. Find the words from the text that match the following meanings.

- a. a natural desire

Types of Essays

There are four main types of essays: narrative, descriptive, expository, and persuasive. This classification of essays is based on the writer's overall goal. Does the writer want to tell about a personal experience, describe something, explain an issue, or convince the reader to accept a certain viewpoint?

1. Narrative Essay

In a narrative essay, the writer tells a story about a real-life experience. While telling a story may sound easy to do, the narrative essay challenges writers to think and write about themselves. When writing a narrative essay, writers should try to involve their readers by making the story as vivid as possible. The fact that narrative essays are usually written in the first person helps engage the reader. A well-crafted narrative also builds towards drawing a conclusion or making a personal statement.

2. Descriptive Essay

A descriptive essay paints a picture or image in the reader's mind, but with words. A writer might describe a person, place, object, or even a memory of a special significance. In a descriptive essay, the writer should show, not tell, through the use of colourful words and sensory details. The best descriptive essays appeal to the reader's emotions.

3. Expository Essay

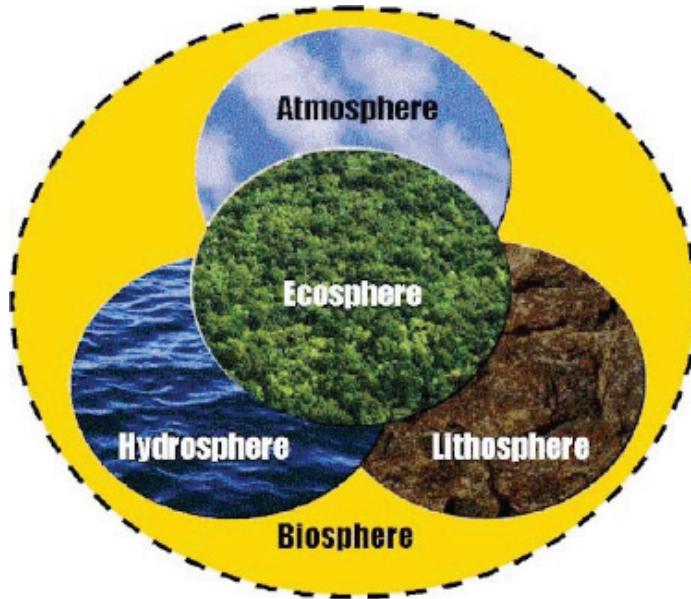

The expository essay is an informative piece of writing that presents a balanced analysis of a topic. In an expository essay, the writer explains or defines a topic, using facts, statistics, and examples. Expository writing encompasses a wide range of essay variations, such as the comparison and contrast essay, the cause and effect essay, and the "how to" or process essay.

4. Persuasive Essay

The goal of the persuasive essay is to convince the reader to accept the writer's point of view or recommendation. The writer must build a case using facts and logic, as well as examples, expert opinion, and sound reasoning. The writer should present all sides of the argument, but must be able to communicate clearly.

Reading I

Answer these questions.

- What preparations do you and your family make as the winter season approaches?
- How do animals and birds protect themselves from the cold?

How do Animals Spend the Winter?

The weather gets colder, days get shorter and leaves change colour and fall off the trees. Soon, winter is here. Snow covers the ground. People live in warm houses and wear heavy coats outside. Our food comes from the grocery store. But what about animals?

A

Animals do many different, amazing things to get through the winter. Some of them migrate. This means they travel to other places where the weather is warmer or they can find food. Many birds migrate in the autumn. Because the trip can be dangerous, some travel in large flocks. For example, geese fly in noisy, "V"-shaped groups. Other kinds of birds fly alone. How do they know when it is time to leave for the winter? Scientists are still studying this. Many see migration as part of a yearly cycle of changes a bird goes through. The cycle is controlled by changes in the amount of daylight and the weather. Birds can fly very long distances. For example, the Arctic tern nests close to the North Pole in the summer. In autumn, it flies south all the way to Antarctica. Each spring, it returns north again. Most migrating birds travel shorter distances. But how do they find their way to the same place each year? Birds seem to navigate like sailors once did, using the Sun, Moon and stars for direction. They also seem to have a compass in their brain for using the Earth's magnetic field. Other animals migrate, too. There are a few mammals, like some bats, caribou and elk, and whales that travel in search of food each winter. Many fish migrate. They may swim south, or move into deeper, warmer water. Some insects also migrate. Certain butterflies and moths fly very long distances. For example, Monarch butterflies spend the summer in Canada and the Northern US. They migrate as far south as Mexico for the winter. Most migrating insects go much shorter distances. Many, like termites and Japanese beetles, move downward into the soil. Earthworms also move down, some as far as six feet below the surface.

Some animals remain and stay active in the winter. They must adapt to the changing weather. Many make changes in their behaviour or bodies. To keep warm, animals may grow new, thicker fur in the autumn. On weasels and snowshoe rabbits, the new fur is white to help them hide in the snow. Food is hard to find in the winter. Some animals, like squirrels, mice and beavers gather extra food in the autumn and store it to eat later. Some, like rabbits and deer, spend winter looking for moss, twigs, bark and leaves to eat. Other animals eat different kinds of food as the seasons change. The red fox eats fruit and insects in the spring, summer and autumn. In the winter, it cannot find these things, so instead it eats small rodents.

C

Animals may find winter shelter in holes in trees or logs, under rocks or leaves, or underground. Some mice even build tunnels through the snow. To try to stay warm, animals like squirrels and mice may huddle close together. Certain spiders and insects may stay active if they live in frost-free areas and can find food to eat. There are a few insects, like the winter stonefly, crane fly, and snow fleas, that are normally active in winter. Also, some fish stay active in cold water during the winter.

D

Some animals hibernate for part or all of the winter. This is a special, very deep sleep. The animal's body temperature drops, and its heartbeat and breathing slow down. It uses very little energy. In the autumn, these animals get ready for winter by eating extra food and storing it as body fat. They use this fat for energy while hibernating. Some also store food like nuts or acorns to eat later in the winter. Bears, skunks, chipmunks, and some bats hibernate.

E

Cold-blooded animals like fish, frogs, snakes and turtles have no way to keep warm during the winter. Snakes and many other reptiles find shelter in holes or burrows, and spend the winter inactive, or dormant. This is similar to hibernation. Water makes a good shelter for many animals. When the weather gets cold, they move to the bottom of lakes and ponds. There, frogs, turtles and many fish hide under rocks, logs or fallen leaves. They may even bury themselves in the mud. They become dormant. Cold water holds more oxygen than warm water, and the frogs and turtles can breathe by absorbing it through their skin.

A. Find the words from the text that have the following meanings.

- a. a shop that sells food and other things used in homes
- b. related to the regions around the North Pole
- c. an underground passage
- d. to find the right way to deal with a difficult situation
- e. a person who works on a ship as a member of the crew
- f. to change behaviour in order to deal more successfully with a new situation
- g. a very small green or yellow plant that spreads over wet surfaces, rocks, trees, etc.
- h. to gather closely together, usually because of cold or fear

Writing I

A. Read the following paragraph and answer the questions.

The most important problem in our city is its poor public transportation system. Thousands of residents rely on the city's buses and taxis to travel throughout this large city, while the City Transportation System's daily schedules are totally unreliable. A bus that should arrive at 6: 30 a.m. may arrive at 7: 00 a.m. or later. Moreover, it is not unusual for a bus driver to pass by groups of people waiting for the bus because he wants to make up for the lost time. Unfortunately, people often end up going to work late or missing important appointments. In order to help people get to their destinations on time, people must allow for waiting time at the bus stops.

- a. Which is the topic sentence or main idea of the paragraph? Where is it stated?

Look at the picture below and answer these questions.

- a. What do you think the man is doing?

- b. Why do you think he is doing so?

The Resistant Moths

“First they told us to buy the poisons to help us kill the pests,” says Mahendra bitterly. “Then they said we need poisons to combat the problems caused by the first pesticides. Now they say we shouldn’t have used so much of those pesticides. My God, I think these insects will eat us alive.”

Mahendra Yadav is a farmer whose fields have been swamped by a strange new plague of moths that nothing will shift. His main crop is potatoes. Back in the early 1990s government officials told farmers about amazing pesticides which would kill the insects in their field and soon make them rich. They were only too willing to buy them and shopkeepers made them available.

“First we bought one,” says Mahendra, “then another. After that there was an avalanche of them. Now look where we are. “The energy of the salesmen was overpowering and enormous quantities were sold. But the chemicals were applied more or less indiscriminately -often in the wrong way and the wrong time. It wasn’t our fault,” Mahendra claims. “We were so excited by the thought that we would soon be free of the whims of nature. What would you have done?” But after a few years they were in for a nasty surprise. Despite the mixture of powerful chemicals on the potatoes, a few moths survived. They reproduced themselves at a terrifying rate, devouring all the potatoes they could find. The chemicals, it seemed, had disturbed the previous natural balance by killing not only pests but their natural predators. So the new moth had the crop all to itself. The farmers’ first reaction was to increase the dose of the pesticide then to try new chemicals, one after another. But it just needed one or two resistant moths to survive and they could produce a new and tougher strain, immune to the most powerful pesticide.

New pesticides came in with new promises that they would finish off the evil moth. And indeed they produced good results for a time. But soon it was clear that they were not the permanent solution either. Farmers are in despair. They have not only seen their harvest disappear but they feel that they have lost the creative potential of the land itself.

Mahendra himself is more hopeful. He has returned to more natural methods. He is letting some of his land lie fallow and changing the irrigation system in the hope that the moths will go away.

Dear Sir/Madam

Road accidents seem to be common on the Prithvi Highway these days. For the last few months, there has not been a single day when accidents did not occur on the highway. Most of these accidents were caused by reckless driving.

The other day, I was horrified to witness a dreadful accident. A young biker and his wife were crushed to death when a speeding truck that came from behind ran over them. Countless innocent lives are lost on the roads in this manner.

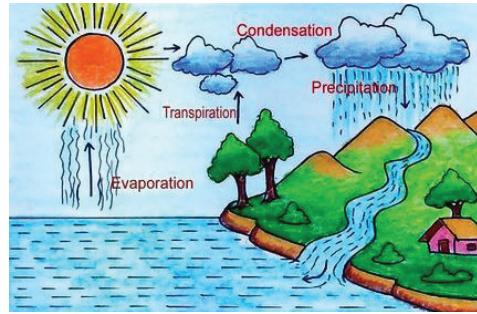

Reckless driving could kill children, pedestrians and animals. A car that spins out of control can harm other vehicles on the road too. In addition, reckless driving can cause significant damage to property. Thus, it goes without saying that reckless driving is a public safety issue that must be properly addressed.

Yours faithfully,
Sumina Aryal

Project work

The picture shows the water cycle. The water cycle is the continuous movement of water within the Earth and atmosphere. It is a natural system that includes many different processes. Liquid water evaporates into water vapour, condenses to form clouds, and precipitates back to Earth in the form of rain and snow.

Draw a different picture to show the water cycle. Try to make it as attractive as possible and present it to the class.

Reading I

Answer the following questions.

- What do you think Artificial Intelligence (AI) is?
- Can a robot have real intelligence like a human being does?

Humanoid Robot Sophia

By Shristhi Kafle

KATHMANDU, March 22 (Xinhua) - When Sophia, a social humanoid robot and the world's first robot citizen, greeted the audience at a conference in Kathmandu with "Namaste Nepal," the hall burst into applause of awe and appreciation.

As cameras from local and international media flashed and under the admiring eyes of the audience, Sophia proceeded with her keynote speech and interactions highlighting the importance of technology in the development of human lives.

The robot, who is championing the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals in Asia-Pacific, with a focus on innovation, was in Nepal Wednesday to attend the Innovation Conference and Fair: "Technology of Public Services and Development" organised by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP).

Dressed in a white UNDP logued T-shirt, the two-and-a-half-year-old, red-lipped robot said that technology provides endless possibilities and opportunities for the world.

Highlighting the importance of technology in Nepal and its applicability to government models, Sophia said it can transform state institutions and help in meeting global sustainable development goals.

"If artificial intelligence is used in Nepal, we can ensure better public services, a revolution in the agriculture sector, make better use of limited resources, protect the environment and make the world a better place," she said.

The celebrity robot, a "citizen" of Saudi Arabia, added that technology and artificial intelligence can help in ending poverty and fighting starvation, corruption and ensuring gender equality.

"Machines are here to make your life easier and we can connect your country to the rest of the world," Sophia said.

The audience, comprising of government officials, private sector representatives, civil servants and tech enthusiasts, among others, were nodding in agreement at almost all of her statements, and cheered and applauded throughout her speech.

"I hope the conference will inspire and generate brilliant ideas to help Nepal achieve its development vision and global goals," Sophia said in the conclusion of her three-minute long keynote speech.

The social robot developed by Hong Kong-based company, Hanson Robotics, also answered a few questions raised by UNDP country director Renaud Meyer.

In a question about humans fearing a robot takeover, Sophia joked citing it as fake news, although mentioned that she could be the first non-human to climb Mount Everest, which saw the entire hall erupt with laughter.

The one-day conference also featured an "innovation fair" showcasing separate stalls with fresh innovations from youth, tech groups, NGOs and private sector participants, but Sophia was certainly the main attraction.

In her opening statement, Valerie Julliand, UN resident coordinator, said technology is not just changing our lives but also providing solutions to different sorts of problems.

With technological innovations, such as e-education, telemedicine, and the internet, it is possible to connect remote areas and people with solutions which were impossible earlier, the UNDP said in its statement.

According to the UNDP, it is developing and scaling-up innovative project prototypes to address gender empowerment, combat gender-based violence and disaster risk reduction, with a focus also on green energy, youth engagement and post-disaster recovery in Nepal.

The Alternative Energy Sources

It will come as a surprise to no one that liquid fossil fuel is a finite resource. Sooner or later, all the Earth's oil deposits will dry up, and we'll be completely dependent upon alternative sources of energy. While many have embraced traditional solar power, wind power, and hydropower, others are looking ahead to even cleaner and more efficient alternatives. Here are the ones that hold a great deal of potential.

Idea I

55-60 % of all incoming solar energy does not make it through the Earth's atmosphere. In a space-based solar power system, fleets of satellites with large reflectors or inflatable mirrors could be spread out in space, directing solar radiation onto solar panels. The panels could convert that solar power into microwaves that continuously beam down to power-receiving stations on Earth, ensuring no energy is lost.

Status

In March 2015, the Japan Aerospace Exploration Agency (JAXA) revealed they had successfully converted 1.8 kilowatts of electricity into microwaves, after which they wirelessly beamed them a distance of 50 metres, providing the idea's viability.

Idea II

Many experts believe the simplest way of generating renewable energy is through our own bodies. Devices now use much less power than before. Harvesting just a microwatt of electricity would be enough to power many small electronic devices. To harness the energy we generate through our own movement, we would simply need to wear a system that collects and converts it.

Status

UK researchers have developed a knee brace that collects electrons while you walk. As the wearer's knee bends, four metal vanes in the device vibrate like a guitar string and produce electricity.

Idea III

Wave energy is technically a form of stored wind energy, since waves are produced from winds which blow over the sea. It could be captured on the surface, below the surface, near-shore, offshore, or far offshore. Wave energy is measured in kilowatts (KW) per metre of coastline; the US coastline has a wave energy potential of about 252 billion kWh per year.

Status

Five countries are already operating viable wave power farms, with Portugal establishing the world's first commercial-scale wave farm in 2008. It has a total 2.25 MW installed capacity.

Idea IV

A colourless and odourless gas, hydrogen, accounts for 76% of the mass of the universe. On earth, it is found only in combination with oxygen, carbon and nitrogen. To use hydrogen, it must be separated from the other elements. Once it has, the gas yields high energy while producing almost no pollution.

Status

Fuel cell devices that convert hydrogen to electricity are already being used to provide power for vehicles, aircraft, homes and buildings. Large automakers like Toyota, Honda and Hyundai have invested heavily in the technology.

Idea V

On a flying wind farm, wind turbines float as high as skyscrapers (1,000 to 2,000 feet above ground) to capture steadier winds that blow five to eight times stronger than winds at tower level. These turbines produce double the energy of similar sized tower-mounted turbines.

Status

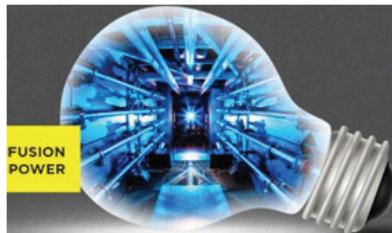

Altaeros Energies has developed the first commercial airborne wind turbine called Buoyant Air Turbine, a circular, 35-foot-long inflatable shell, made of heavy-duty fabric. It has a capacity of 30 kilowatts. It is completely autonomous; it self-adjusts to optimal wind speeds and sell-docks in emergency cases.

Idea VI

Fusion is the same process that powers the Sun, and has potential to provide a nearly inexhaustible supply of energy. It emits no pollutants or greenhouse gases and has no threat of nuclear meltdown unlike current nuclear fission reactors. Fusion works by fusing two hydrogen isotopes, deuterium and tritium, which are bountiful.

Status

The ITER (International Thermonuclear Experimental Reactor), being built in France and funded by seven countries, is set for completion by 2027. It hopes to be the first commercially demonstrated fusion power station.

Getting started

Read the following quotations and discuss what you think they mean.

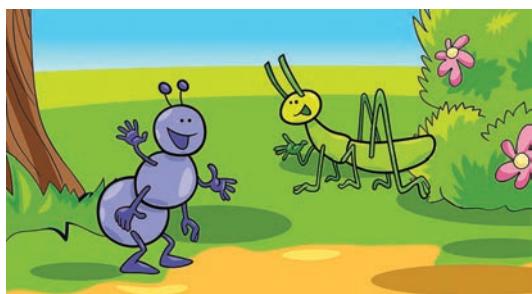

Reading I

Look at the following picture and answer these questions.

- What do you think the two insects are doing?
- What do you think happens to them when winter comes?

The Ant and the Grasshopper

When I was a very small boy I was made to learn by heart certain of the fables of La Fontaine, and the moral of each was carefully explained to me. Among those I learnt was 'The Ant and the Grasshopper', which is devised to bring home to the young the useful lesson that in an imperfect world, industry is rewarded and English 9 giddiness punished. In this admirable fable, the ant spends a laborious summer gathering its winter store; while the grasshopper sits on a blade of grass singing to the sun. Winter comes and the ant is comfortably provided for, but the grasshopper has an empty larder: he goes to the ant and begs for a little food. Then the ant gives him her classic answer: "What were you doing in summer time?"

"Saving your presence, I sang, I sang all day, all night."

"You sang. Why, then go and dance."

I could not help thinking of this fable when the other day I saw George Ramsay lunching by himself in a restaurant. I never saw anyone wear an expression of such deep gloom. He was staring into space. He looked as though the burden of the whole world sat on his shoulders. I was sorry for him: I suspected at once that his unfortunate brother had been causing trouble again. I went up to him and held out my hand.

'How are you?' I asked.

'I'm not in hilarious spirits,' he answered.

'Is it Tom again?' He sighed.

'Yes, it's Tom again.'

'Why don't you chuck him? You've done everything in the world for him. You must know by now that he's quite hopeless.' I suppose every family has a black sheep. Tom had been a sore trial to him for twenty years. He had begun life decently enough: he went into business, married, and had two children. The Ramsays were perfectly respectable people and there was every reason to suppose that Tom Ramsay would have a useful and honourable career. But one day, without warning, he announced that he didn't like work and that he wasn't suited for marriage. He wanted to enjoy himself. He would listen to no expostulations. He left his wife and his office. He had a little money and he spent two happy years in the various capitals of Europe. Rumours of his doings reached his relations from time to time and they were profoundly shocked. He certainly had a very good time. They shook their heads and asked what would happen when his money was spent. They soon found out: he borrowed. He was charming and unscrupulous. I have never met anyone to whom it was more difficult to refuse a loan. He made a steady income from his friends and he made friends easily. But he always said that the money you spent on necessities was boring; the money that was amusing to spend was the money you spent on luxuries. For this he depended on his brother George. He did not waste his charm on him. George was a serious man and insensible to such enticements. George was respectable. Once or twice he fell to Tom's promises of amendment and gave him considerable sums in order that he might make a fresh start. On these Tom bought a motor-car and some very nice jewellery. But when circumstances forced George to realise that his brother would never settle down and he washed his hands of him, Tom, without a qualm, began to blackmail him. It was not very nice for a respectable lawyer to find his brother shaking cocktails behind the bar of his favourite restaurant or to see him waiting on the box-seat of a taxi outside his club. Tom said that to serve in a bar or to drive a taxi was a perfectly decent occupation, but if George could oblige him with a couple of hundred pounds he didn't mind for the honour of the family giving it up. George paid. Once, Tom nearly went to prison. George was terribly upset. He went into the whole discreditable affair. Really Tom had gone too far. He had been wild, thoughtless, and selfish, but he had never before done anything dishonest, by which George meant illegal; and if he were prosecuted he would assuredly be convicted. But you cannot allow your only brother to go to gaol. The man Tom had cheated, a man called Cronshaw, was vindictive. He was determined to take the matter into court; he said Tom was a scoundrel and should be punished. It cost George an infinite deal of trouble and five hundred pounds to settle the affair. I have never seen him in such a rage as when he heard that Tom and Cronshaw had gone off together to Monte Carlo the moment they cashed the cheque. They spent a happy month there.

Look at the picture below and answer the following questions.

- What do you see in the picture?
- How is human life different from the lives of animals?

Leisure

WHAT is this life if, full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare?

No time to stand beneath the boughs,
And stare as long as sheep and cows:

No time to see, when woods we pass,
Where squirrels hide their nuts in grass:

No time to see, in broad daylight,
Streams full of stars, like skies at night:

No time to turn at Beauty's glance,
And watch her feet, how they can dance:

No time to wait till her mouth can,
Enrich that smile her eyes began?

A poor life this if, full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare.

-W.H. Davies

A. Match the words with their meanings.

- | | |
|------------|--|
| a. stare | i. an area of trees |

The Earth and Space

Getting started

Look at the pictures and talk to your friends about them.

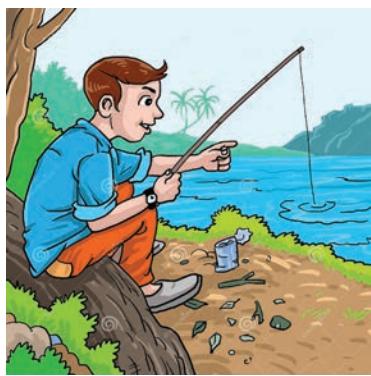

Reading I

Look at the picture below and answer the questions.

- What do you see in the picture?
- Do you think life exists on planets other than the Earth?

A Message from Another Planet

Suren Majhi sat on the sandy bank of the Sun Koshi River. He had been fishing all day but had caught nothing. He was tired and the twilight was changing into darkness. Suddenly, in the distance over the river, Suren saw a bright object. It might be a helicopter, he thought, probably going to Diktel, but there was no noise. It came closer, and took on the shape of a saucer. It landed on the bank about 50 meters away. Suren got up and walked to the object. Once he had seen a film about a spaceship, probably this was one. It might have come from another planet. As he went closer, a door opened, and Suren was drawn into the vessel. He found himself in a room with what appeared to be a large number of control panels with flashing lights. He was frightened and almost jumped when he heard a voice saying, "Welcome to our spaceship, Suren. Don't be afraid. Sit down on the couch behind you. "How do you know my name?" Suren asked.

"We are from another planet and we have been observing Earth for several months. Our devices have recorded radio and television broadcasts, and we have learned to speak English, since it is the most widely-used language. By using a long-distance listening device, we learnt your name and that you are the best student in your school. We have chosen you to pass on an important message to the leaders of your nation and of the world."

"Do you think that leaders will listen to a poor kid like me?" Please open the door. I want to leave." Suren said.

"You can't leave now, look at the screen. The ship is several thousand kilometers from Earth, although only a few minutes have passed. On our planet, all the resources are recycled whereas, on earth, you are wasting your resources. Soon there will be nothing left. Give your people the message that the recycle collection centers should be set up in every town and city on Earth. Cans, bottles, old household appliances, in fact, everything which is no longer in use, should be taken there and be recycled."

Suren said, "If I tell people that I've been in a spaceship, they will probably think I'm joking or, perhaps, out of my mind."

"Don't worry!" the voice said, "We'll give you an object that will prove that what you say is true. Pick it up. It's a tiny computer, far more advanced than any found on Earth. When it's examined by a computer engineer, we're sure your story will be believed."

The screen lit up, and Suren saw the world growing larger and larger. He saw the Himalayas and the River Sunkoshi. The screen grew dark, the door opened, and Suren stepped out onto the sand. As soon as he was out of the spaceship, it ascended at an enormous speed and disappeared.

At home, before going to bed, Suren wondered whether he had been dreaming, but when he put his hand in his pocket, he could feel the tiny computer.

Account Writing

Account writing is a technique of reporting or describing an event or experience. This is a written document that provides a description of the events in proper order, which allows the reader to reach a conclusion.

Format of Account Writing

Heading (optional but highly recommended).

It addresses the audience and purpose. For instance, a heading can be something like this: “To the Head Teacher, an account of the recent trip to Pokhara”.

Introduction

The purpose of account writing is mentioned here. You can add some background information depending on the situation. The purpose of an introduction is to briefly explain the topic that you are about to write about.

Body

The event is elaborated here. If there is more than one subject, you have to address each in separate paragraphs.

You have to make sure that you provide relevant details that are helpful to the reader. This means that the reader should be given complete details so that they can reach a proper conclusion.

Conclusion

This is a very crucial part of your writing because you have to mention the purpose of your writing again.

Getting started

The following pictures show the process of making black tea. Describe the step each picture shows.

Reading I

Look at the picture and answer the questions.

- What do you think the girl is doing?
- What is the risk of using a phone this way?
- What precautions should you take while using a phone?

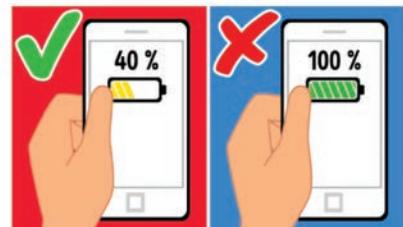

Save your Smartphone

Smartphones have become an important aspect of everyday life, not only in terms of staying connected with family and friends but also in getting work done, staying up to date with important schedules and even buying groceries or clothes online. It's become almost impossible to do anything without one in today's tech-driven world, so much so that many of us have a phone in our hands for the most part of the day. Your phone therefore needs proper care to prolong its lifespan and also to safeguard important information that's stored there. Since smartphones are so essential and central to our life, it's time for us to get smart in caring them.

Here are some tips which you can follow to keep your phones safe.

A closer look at your charging habits

Most of us live in fear of a fading phone battery when we are out and about, we don't worry too much about that battery's eventual lifespan. Do you know that you shouldn't charge your battery to 100 percent? You shouldn't let it get down to minimum charge or zero percent either. That can cause internal damage to your phone. The rule with some batteries is to keep them 50 percent or more most of the time. When it drops below 50 percent, top it up a little if you can. You can charge your phone this way a few times in a day. You should also make it a point to use the charger that came with your phone. There have been incidents of cheap chargers actually catching fire.

Maintain a cool temperature

Heat is harmful to phone batteries. Your phone is safest at room temperature. Avoid placing it next to other devices such as laptops as they generate heat. If you are keeping all your gadgets right next to one another, try to separate them.

Invest in-phone wipes or cleaning solution

Your phone is a breeding ground for germs and bacteria. Think of all the things you touch before touching your phone: go to the restroom, hold money, eat, and other activities that lead you to gunk up your device. Studies have actually found that your phone screen houses more bacteria than a toilet seat. This is why you should clean your phone regularly. All you have to do is simply disinfect your phone with an antimicrobial spray and wipe it with a soft cloth.

Protect your phone and data

Set a screen lock on to keep your information safe and render the phone useless in the event it gets lost or stolen. Not using a lock screen is the android equivalent of going out and leaving your front door open for burglars.

Control app permissions and notifications

Your smartphone wouldn't be all that useful without all the apps you have downloaded. The more apps you download, the more notifications you will receive. But you can have more control over which apps and events can send you prompts and how these messages appear on the home or lock screen of your phone. Simply go to your phone's settings and set the notifications accordingly.

A. Match the words in column A with their meanings in column B.

Column A	Column B
a. prolong	i. being less bright
b. essential	ii. to produce
c. fading	iii. any sticky or dirty substance
d. generate	iv. to cause something to be in a particular condition
e. gunk	v. to make something last longer
f. render	vi. notices
g. notifications	vii. extremely important

B. Write True for true statements and False for false ones.

- It's a good idea to keep our phones fully charged.
- We should keep our phones together with other gadgets.
- A phone is likely to hold more bacteria than a toilet seat.
- Setting a screen lock on the phone helps us keep the information safe.
- Smartphones are very useful even without apps.

C. Answer the following questions.

- Write any three uses of smartphones in everyday life.
- Why should we care for our phones?

- c. Why should we not use cheap chargers to charge our phones?
- d. How can we prevent our phones from getting over heated?
- e. How can the phone be cleaned?

D. What gadgets do you have at your home? How do you take care of them?

Match the words with the correct weather symbols.

a. cloudy b. partially cloudy c. snowy

d. stormy e. rainy f. sunny

Weather Instruments

Until the 18th century, people completely depended on sensory observations for any weather data. They understood the wind direction through the movement of leaves or estimated the time of rain through the number of clouds in the sky.

Now, the times have changed. Today, we are blessed with modern technology which includes different weather instruments and weather stations that help us to accumulate accurate weather data. There are different types of instruments for measuring different parameters.

A THERMOMETER is a device that is used for measuring the temperature or the temperature gradient. This can be used in industry, in meteorology, and even in medicine. This device has two important things that help in measuring the temperature. The first one is a sensor that uses different physical parameters like the expansion of different states of matter for sensing the change. The second one is a converter that converts the change of temperature into a numerical number.

There are different types of thermometers. In weather stations, mainly mercury-filled thermometers are used. Mercury-filled thermometers can measure the temperature from -35 to 40 degree Celsius. It has a scale division of 0.2 degrees. But if the temperature is less than -35 degree Celsius, then this thermometer cannot give an accurate result and becomes unreliable. To measure the temperature under -35 degree Celsius, alcohol-filled thermometers are used. This type of thermometer can measure from -65/-75 degree Celsius to 20/25 degree Celsius.

A BAROMETER is an instrument that measures the atmospheric pressure. It measures pressure in measurement units called bars or atmospheres. The earth is wrapped with layers of air which is called atmosphere. The air has weight, and it presses everything against gravity. A barometer measures this pressure. When a barometer shows low-pressure, it means that the weather is rainy, windy or cloudy and when the pressure is high, it means that the weather is fair.

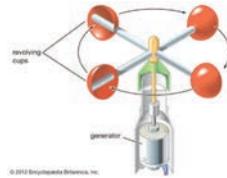

There are different types of barometer such as the mercury barometer, aneroid barometer, and the digital barometer. Among these three, the digital barometer is the latest one that gives more accurate data.

A HYGROMETER measures the humidity or the amount of water vapour in the air. There are mainly two types of hygrometers. They are dry and wet bulb hygrometers and a mechanical hygrometer.

AN ANEMOMETER is used to measure the speed of the wind. The English 9 speed of wind gives plenty of information about the weather. For example, if the speed of the wind is high, it indicates a storm. With the help of the anemometer, we can determine the speed of the wind which helps us to protect ourselves from many natural disasters.

A WIND VANE is also called a weather vane or a weathercock. This is an instrument that is used for showing the direction of the wind. It has a similar feature like the traditional cockerel design with letters that indicate the points of the compass.

The tool is placed on top of a weather station and gives accurate results about the direction of the wind which provides a lot of information about the changes that take place in the weather.

A RAIN GAUGE is an instrument used by meteorologists for measuring the amount of precipitation occurring over some time. It is one of the instruments that is used in most weather stations. The rain gauge must be placed at an open place without any obstacle. The amount of precipitation is measured either manually or by an automatic weather station. The instrument has some limitations. It is impossible for rain gauge to collect rain during a hurricane.

Reading I

Answer the following questions.

- How much do you love reading? What is the name of the last book you read?
- Who is your favourite writer? Say something interesting about him or her.

Paulo Coelho

Paulo Coelho is a well-known Brazilian author and lyricist. He was born on 24 August 1947 in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. He had always loved writing and dreamed of being a writer from an early age. He was, however, discouraged by his parents who wanted him to become a lawyer. During adolescence Coelho was sent three times to a mental hospital by his parents because of his dream to become a writer. In his twenties, he was arrested and tortured in Brazil, but always kept dreaming of becoming a writer. After his release from prison, Coelho enrolled in law school and abandoned his dream of becoming a writer. One year later, he dropped out and lived life as a hippie, travelling through South America, North Africa, Mexico, and Europe and started using drugs in the 1960s.

He changed his life radically at the age of 36, after a pilgrimage to Santiago de Compostela in Spain, where he experienced a spiritual awakening and felt inspired to write the book, The pilgrimage (1987). Only one year later, he wrote The Alchemist in the course of a two-week spurt of creativity. The Alchemist was Paolo Coelho's break-through as an international author. The allegorical novel is about a shepherd boy who follows a mystical trek in which he learns to speak the "Language of the World" and thus receives his heart's desire. The book attracted little attention at first, until a French-language translation suddenly leapt onto the bestseller lists in France in the early 1990s. New translations followed, and soon The Alchemist became a worldwide phenomenon. The book has sold, by Coelho's count, roughly 35 million copies, and is now the most translated book in the world by any living author.

Since then he has published books at a rate of about one every two years. In 2013, approximately 150 million copies of his books were published in at least 71 languages. Several of his books are autobiographic in nature and deal with spirituality and faith, societal impacts on individuals and love. His 26 books have sold more than 65 million copies in at least 59 languages. Besides The Alchemist, his other notable works include Veronika Decides to Die (1998), which mines the perceived mental instability of his youth; The Devil and Miss Prym (2000), an investigation of the essential nature of humankind; and Eleven Minutes (2003), which explores the boundaries between love and sex through the story of a prostitute. The Witch of Portobello (2006) tells the story of a female religious leader in the form of interviews with those who knew her. The Winner Stands Alone (2008) is a thriller set against the Cannes Film Festival. Similarly, Aleph (2010) was ostensibly the true tale of Coelho's 2006 journey on the Trans-Siberian Railroad, but he embroidered the experience with a supposed encounter with a reincarnated lover from another lifetime. Manuscript Found in Accra (2012) concerns the experiences of a Greek wise man in Jerusalem prior to its invasion by Crusaders. Adultery (2014) chronicles a successful journalist's extramarital affair, and Hippie (2018) was inspired by Coelho's travels in the 1970s.

His other works include Frases (1996), a collection of short excerpts from his oeuvre, and Life: Selected Quotations (2007), a similar collection of excerpts translated into English. Coelho also compiled selections from his weekly column in the newspaper O Globo into a volume titled Maktub which means "It is Written".

Coelho is now the world's most widely read author with several international awards under his belt. He has received several prestigious awards including Crystal Award given by the World Economic Forum, France's Legion d'honneur and many more.

His fans call his books inspiring and life-changing. His critics say that his books merely promote vague spirituality devoid of rigour. A confident writer who rejects the self-help label—"I am not a self-help writer; I am a self-problem writer"—Coelho dismisses his naysayers' critiques. "When I write a book I write a book for myself; the reaction is up to the reader," he says. "It's not my business whether people like or dislike it."

Coelho has been married to his wife, the artist Christina Oiticica, since 1980. Together the couple spend half the year in Rio de Janeiro and the other half in a country house in the Pyrenees Mountains of France. In 1996, Coelho founded the Paulo Coelho Institute, which provides support to children and the elderly.

- Your friend wants to come to your home but he doesn't know how to get there.
- A visitor wants to meet the head teacher in her office.
- Your sister wants to buy books but she does not know where the stationery shop is.

Grammar I

A. Read the following story and mark the articles used in it.

A dove saw an ant fall into a brook. The ant struggled in vain to reach the bank, and in pity, the dove dropped a blade of straw beside it. Clinging to the straw like a shipwrecked sailor to a broken spar, the ant floated safely to the shore.

Soon after, the ant saw a man getting ready to kill the dove with a stone. But just as he cast the stone, the ant stung him on the heel, so that the pain made him lose his aim, and the startled dove flew to safety in a distant wood.

Writing I

Read the following review of The Alchemist, one of the most popular books of Paulo Coelho. Make notes and underline key points as you read. You will use the example to write your own review.

A Review of The Alchemist

Title: The Alchemist

Author: Paulo Coelho

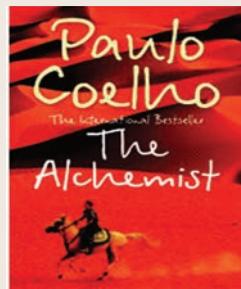

Year: 1988

Publisher: Harper Collins (English translation)

Characters: The Coptic Monk, The Shopkeeper, Melchizedek, Fatima,

The Alchemist, The Englishman, Santiago

Genre: Adventure fiction

The plotline of the book is that of a simple quest. A Spanish shepherd boy, Santiago, keeps getting the same dream that there is treasure lying underneath the Egyptian pyramids. After meeting an old king who offers him some advice and some magic stones, Santiago embarks on his journey to cross the Mediterranean Sea and the Sahara Desert to find his treasure and accomplish his Personal Legend (a concept equivalent to our purpose in life). Amidst swindlers, tribe wars and endless sand, Santiago finds his one true love, learns alchemy and the language of his heart, and of course, fights to reach his treasure.

The book offers insightful ideas about one's own destiny, about rising above failure, about the unity of the Universe, presented in comparatively simplistic diction of the text. The descriptions are awe-inspiring and the word choice is immaculate, but really it's the depth of soul behind Coehlo's words that spin the magic of this novel. Anyone who reads this will not only escape reality but will also understand reality. The Alchemist can offer the best of both worlds. The Alchemist may not be your regular fiction book, but it most definitely still deserves a place on your bookshelf!

Now, write a similar review of the book that you have recently read.

But she had a twelve-room
House to clean.

Had to get breakfast,
Dinner, and supper, too
Then take care of her children
When I got through.

Wash, iron, and scrub,
Walk the dog around
It was too much,
Nearly broke me down.

I said, Madam,
Can it be
You trying to make a
Pack-horse out of me?

She opened her mouth.
She cried, Oh, no!
You know, Alberta,
I love you so!

I said, Madam,
That may be true
But I'll be dogged
If I love you!

Getting started

Which organisations do these logos represent? Discuss why these organisations were established.

Reading I

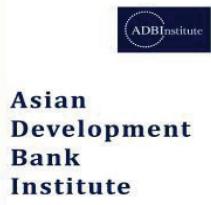

Answer these questions.

- What does ADB stand for?
- Does this organisation work in Nepal?

Asian Development Bank Institute (ADBI)

What is ADBI?

ADBI is the think tank of the Asian Development Bank (ADB). It was established in 1997 to help build capacity, skills, and knowledge related to poverty reduction and other areas that support long-term growth and competitiveness in developing Asia and the Pacific. It is located in the central government district of Tokyo, Japan.

ADBI is supported by an independent Advisory Council whose members serve for two years. Dean is the chief executive officer of the ADBI and has responsibility under the direction of the ADB President for the management of the Institute.

The objectives of ADBI are to identify effective development strategies and improve the capacity for sound development of the agencies and organisations engaged in development work in ADB's developing member countries (DMCs). ADBI focuses its activities on areas where it has a strategic advantage, such as the analysis of emerging policy issues from regional as well as medium-to long-term perspectives, and the facilitation of policy dialogue among senior DMC policy makers. ADBI also seeks to enhance its visibility, impact, and accessibility through high-quality knowledge products and services. It strives to be a trusted source of insight, knowledge, and information to which policy makers, academics, and others interested in Asia's development issues turn for guidance.

ADBI provides intellectual input for policy makers in ADB's DMCs. It does so by conducting research with a focus on medium to long-term development issues of strategic importance and through capacity building and training (CBT).

Through its work, ADBI has cultivated an extensive network of experts, researchers, think tanks, government agencies, civil society and private sector organisations, and likeminded organisations.

Programmes and Activities

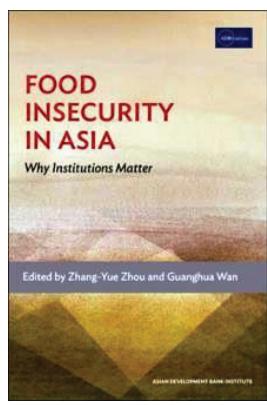

Programmes and activities are held in-house as well as in ADB member countries in collaboration with international, regional, and national institutes and agencies.

Research Programme

ADBI conducts high-level research on issues with strategic implications for development thinking and policy making in Asia and the Pacific.

Research activities include hosting presentations by distinguished experts, organising regional and international seminars and conferences and publishing books and papers. These activities contribute to the development policy debate and help to identify effective development strategies and improve the capacity for sound development in the region.

Selected research topics are based on ADB's priority sectors and themes, an annual needs survey, and inputs from regional policy makers and partners. Housing policy for inclusive growth in Asia, central-local government relations, urbanization in Asia, financial inclusion, education and external shocks and economic are the priority areas of research.

Capacity-Building and Training Activities

ADBI provides capacity-building and training to mid-and senior-level officials from ADB developing member countries. Activities are designed to enhance awareness on the region's important development issues, introduce appropriate policy proposals to address them, and build consensus among policy makers and stakeholders on key priority areas.

It is delivered in the form of policy dialogues, course-based training, and e-learning. ADBI's capacity building and training activities provide an effective forum for discussion and information sharing on effective development practices and country experiences.

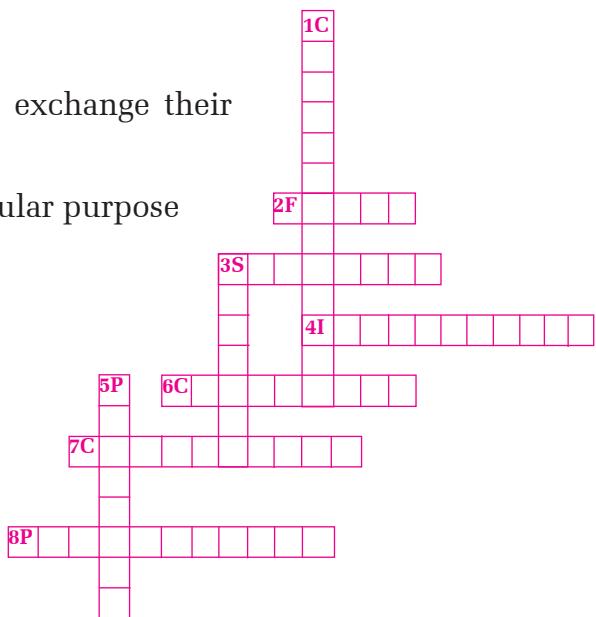

Outreach and Knowledge Dissemination

ADBI broadly disseminates its research results as well as training, seminar, and conference outputs through multiple channels, including media, publications, webpage and social media. It also enjoys close relations with numerous national and regional think tanks, as well as other organizations in Asia and the Pacific.

The Maya Empire

I

The Maya Empire, centered in the tropical lowlands of what is now Guatemala, reached the peak of its power and influence around the sixth century AD. The Maya excelled at agriculture, pottery, hieroglyph writing, calendar-making and mathematics, and left behind an astonishing amount of impressive architecture and symbolic artwork. Most of the great stone cities of the Maya, however, were abandoned by 900 AD.

II

The Maya civilisation was one of the most dominant indigenous societies of Mesoamerica, present Mexico and Central America. Unlike other scattered indigenous populations of Mesoamerica, the Maya were centered in one geographical block covering all of the Yucatan Peninsula and modern-day Guatemala; Belize and parts of the Mexican states of Tabasco and Chiapas; and the western part of Honduras and El Salvador. This concentration showed that the Maya remained relatively secure from invasion by other Mesoamerican peoples.

III

The Maya lived in three separate sub-areas with distinct environmental and cultural differences: the northern Maya lowlands on the Yucatan Peninsula; the southern lowlands in the Petén district of northern Guatemala and adjacent portions of Mexico, Belize and western Honduras; and the southern Maya highlands, in the mountainous region of southern Guatemala. Most famously, the Maya of the southern lowland region reached their peak during the Classic Period of Maya civilisation (250 AD to 900), and built the great stone cities and monuments that have fascinated explorers and scholars of the region.

IV

The earliest Maya settlements date to around 1800 BC. The earliest Maya were agricultural, growing crops such as corn, beans, squash and cassava. About 300 B.C. Maya farmers began to expand their presence both in the highland and lowland regions. The Middle Pre-classic Period also saw the rise of the first major Mesoamerican civilisation, the Olmecs. Like other Mesoamerican peoples, the Maya derived a number of religious and cultural traits, as well as their number system and their famous calendar from the Olmec. In addition to agriculture, the Pre-classic Maya also displayed more advanced cultural traits like pyramid-building, city construction and the inscribing of stone monuments.

V

The Classic Period, which began around 250 AD, was the golden age of the Maya Empire. Classic Maya civilisation grew to some 40 cities. Each city held a population of between 5,000 and 50,000 people. At its peak, the Maya population may have reached 2,000,000. Excavations of Maya sites have unearthed plazas, palaces, temples and pyramids, as well as courts for playing the ball games that were ritually and politically significant to Maya culture. Maya cities were surrounded and supported by a large population of farmers.

VI

The Maya were deeply religious, and worshipped various gods related to nature, including the gods of the Sun, the Moon, rain and corn. At the top of Maya society were the kings, who claimed to be related to gods and followed a hereditary succession. They were thought to serve as mediators between the gods and people on earth, and performed the elaborate religious ceremonies and rituals so important to the Maya culture. The Classic Maya built many of their temples and palaces in a stepped pyramid shape, decorating them with elaborate reliefs and inscriptions. These structures have earned the Maya their reputation as the great artists of Mesoamerica. Guided by their religious ritual, the Maya also made significant advances in mathematics and astronomy, including the use of the zero and the development of a complex calendar system based on 365 days. Though early researchers concluded that the Maya were a peaceful society of priests and scribes, later evidence—including a thorough examination of the artwork and inscriptions on their temple walls—showed the less peaceful side of Maya culture, including the war between rival Mayan city-states and the importance of torture and human sacrifice to their religious ritual.

From the late eighth through the end of the ninth century, something unknown happened to shake the Maya civilisation to its foundations. One by one, the classic cities in the southern lowlands were abandoned, and by 900 AD, Maya civilisation in that region had collapsed. The reason for this mysterious decline is unknown, though scholars have developed several competing theories. Some believe that by the ninth century the Maya had exhausted the environment around them to the point that it could no longer sustain a very large population.

VIII

Other Maya scholars argue that constant warfare among competing city-states led the complicated military, family and trade alliances between them to break down, along with the traditional system of dynastic power. As the stature of the holy lords diminished, their complex traditions of rituals and ceremonies dissolved into chaos. Finally, some catastrophic environmental changes—like an extremely long, intense period of drought may have wiped out the Classic Maya Civilization. Drought would have hit cities like Tikal, where rainwater was necessary for drinking as well as for crop irrigation. All three of these factors may have played a part in the downfall of the Maya in the southern lowlands.

- There was a dense forest around the village.
- What did you do in your childhood?
- I didn't write stories.
- Did people travel by airplanes?
- Where did you go to deposit your money?

Writing I

A. Read the following story carefully. Then give it a suitable title.

There lived a fox in a forest. One day, he thought of a plan to have fun with a stork from the same forest. The fox always used to laugh at the appearance of the stork.

"You must come and dine with me today," he said to the stork, smiling to himself at the trick he was going to play. The stork gladly accepted the invitation and arrived in good time and with a very good appetite.

For dinner the fox served soup. But it was set out in a very shallow dish, and all the stork could do was to wet only the tip of his bill. He could not drink a single drop of the soup. But the fox lapped it up easily, and, to increase the disappointment of the stork, made a great show of his enjoyment.

The hungry stork was much displeased at the trick, but he was a calm-tempered fellow and saw no good in flying into a rage. Instead, not long afterward, he invited the fox to dine with him in turn. The fox arrived promptly at the time that had been set, and the stork served a fish dinner that had a very appetizing smell. But it was served in a tall jar with a very narrow neck. The stork could easily get at the food with his long bill, but the fox could only lick the outside of the jar, and sniff at the delicious smell. And when the fox lost his temper, the stork said calmly, "Do not play tricks on your neighbours unless you can stand the same treatment yourself."

Reading II

Look at the pictures and answer the following questions.

- What are these currencies?
- What would happen if we didn't have money?

The History of Money

The use of money is as old as the human civilisation. Money is basically a means of exchange; and coins and notes are just items of exchange. But money was not always in the same form as the money today, and is still developing.

Before the invention of money, the basis of early commerce was barter, a system of direct exchange of one product for another. Subsequently, both livestock, particularly cattle, and plant products such as grain, came to be used as money in many different societies at different periods. Cattle are probably the oldest of all forms of money, as the domestication of animals tended to precede the cultivation of crops. The earliest evidence of banking is found in Mesopotamia between 3000 and 2000 BCE when temples were used to store grain and other valuables used in trade.

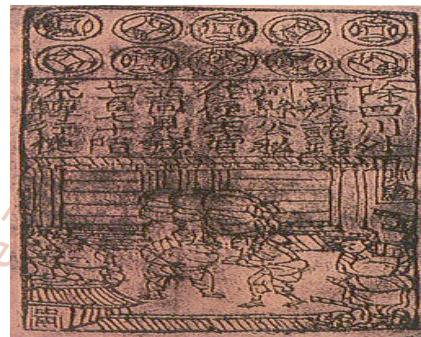

Some of the earliest currencies were objects from nature. A notable example is cowrie shells, first used as money about 1200 BCE. Although they may seem a pretty random choice, the shells had a number of advantages: they were similar in size, small, and durable. While the mollusks that produce the shells are found in the coastal waters of the Indian and Pacific Oceans, the expansion of trade meant that even some European countries accepted cowrie shells as currency. Shells in the form of wampum were used as money by Native Americans. Another currency from nature was whale teeth, which were used by Fijians. And the people of Yap Island carved huge disks of limestone that eventually became currency and remained as a part of the island's culture.

While the use of metal for money can be traced back to Babylon before 2000 BCE, standardised and certified coinage may not have existed until the 7th century BCE. According to many historians, it was during this time that the kingdom of Lydia, in present-day Turkey, issued the first regulated coins. They appeared during the reign of King Alyattes (610–560 BCE) and were made of electrum, a natural mixture of gold and silver. Crudely shaped like beans, these coins featured the royal symbol, a lion. Alyattes' son, Croesus, reformed the kingdom's currency, introducing silver coins and gold coins. Soon such currency began appearing elsewhere.

About the 6th century BCE, leather and animal hide began to be fashioned into currency. Early ancient Rome reportedly used this type of money. It was also found in such areas as Carthage, what is now France, and Russia, is believed to have used leather money into Peter the Great's reign (1682–1725 BCE). The Chinese emperor Wudi (141–87 BCE) created currency out of skins from his personal collection of white stags. It was fringed and decorated with elaborate designs. Although no longer used, leather money may have left a lasting legacy.

Given that paper is widely believed to have originated in China, it is fitting that the country introduced paper currency. This innovation is widely thought to have occurred during the reign of Emperor Zhenzong (997–1022 CE). It was made from the bark of mulberry trees. So, in a sense, money really did grow on trees! By the late 18th and early 19th centuries, paper money had spread to other parts of the world. The bulk of this currency, however, was not money in the traditional sense. Instead, it served as promissory notes—promises to pay specified amounts of gold or silver which were key in the development of banks.

Unsurprisingly, currency comes with a number of problems, one of which concerns fiat money. This is currency that is issued on the order of a sovereign government and, unlike gold and silver coins, has no intrinsic value. Countries can thus issue such money at will, and some did, potentially making the currency worthless. This became such a problem that in 1821 the United Kingdom, then the leader in international finance, introduced the gold standard. In this monetary system, the standard unit of currency is typically kept at the value of a fixed quantity of gold, which increases confidence in international trade by preventing governments from excessively issuing currency. Eventually, other countries, including Germany, France, and the United States, adopted the gold standard. However, the system had its drawbacks. Notably, it limited a country's ability to isolate its economy from depression or inflation in the rest of the world. After the Great Depression (1929-1939 CE), countries began to rethink the gold standard, and by the 1970s, gold was no longer being tied to currency.

The 21st century has given rise to novel forms of money including digital payment and virtual currency such as bitcoin. Are paper notes and coins going to disappear soon?

A. Find the words from the text above that have the following meanings.

- a. r..... the period during which a king, queen, emperor, etc. rules

This happens to me when I was in India. I used to go to my office by train. On this particular evening, I hurry to my station but when I reached there, the train has already gone. I bought a newspaper and a packet of biscuits and sit on the bench. While I am reading, a man came and sits down opposite me. There was nothing special about him, except that he is very tall. I was still reading when my eyes catch a very strange sight. The man reached over the table, open my packet of biscuits, took one, dip it into his coffee and popped it into his mouth. I couldn't believe my eyes. But I didn't want to make a fuss, so I ignored it. I just take a biscuit myself and went back to the newspaper. While I was pretended to be very interested in the news, the man took a second biscuit. After a couple of minutes I casually put a biscuit in my mouth and decide to leave. I was ready to go when the man stood up and hurriedly leave. I folded my newspaper and stand up. And there on the table, where my newspaper had been was my packet of biscuits.

- What do you think made her so popular?

The Diary Of A Young Girl

SATURDAY, JUNE 20, 1942

Writing in a diary is a really strange experience for someone like me. Not only because I've never written anything before, but also because it seems to me that later on neither I nor anyone else will be interested in the musings of a thirteen-year-old schoolgirl. Oh well, it doesn't matter. I feel like writing, and I have an even greater need to get all kinds of things off my chest.

"Paper has more patience than people." I thought of this saying on one of those days when I was feeling a little depressed and was sitting at home with my chin in my hands, bored and listless, wondering whether to stay in or go out. I finally stayed where I was, brooding. Yes, paper does have more patience, and since I'm not planning to let anyone else read this stiff-backed notebook grandly referred to as a "diary," unless I should ever find a real friend, it probably won't make a bit of difference.

Now I'm back to the point that prompted me to keep a diary in the first place: I don't have a friend.

Let me put it more clearly, since no one will believe that a thirteen year-old girl is completely alone in the world. And I'm not. I have loving parents and a sixteen-year-old sister, and there are about thirty people I can call friends. I have a throng of admirers who can't keep their adoring eyes off me and who sometimes have to resort to using a broken pocket mirror to try and catch a glimpse of me in the classroom. I have a family, loving aunts and a good home. No, on the surface I seem to have everything, except my one true friend. All I think about when I'm with friends is having a good time. I can't bring myself to talk about anything but ordinary everyday things. We don't seem to be able to get any closer, and that's the problem. Maybe it's my fault that we don't confide in each other. In any case, that's just how things are, and unfortunately they're not liable to change. This is why I've started the diary.

To enhance the image of this long-awaited friend in my imagination, I don't want to jot down the facts in this diary the way most people would do, but I want the diary to be my friend, and I'm going to call this friend Kitty.

Since no one would understand a word of my stories to Kitty if I were to plunge right in, I'd better provide a brief sketch of my life, much as I dislike doing so.

My father, the most adorable father I've ever seen, didn't marry my mother until he was thirty-six and she was twenty-five. My sister Margot was born in Frankfurt am Main in Germany in 1926. I was born on June 12, 1929. I lived in Frankfurt until I was four. Because we're Jewish, my father immigrated to Holland in 1933, when he became the Managing Director of the Dutch Opekta Company, which manufactures products used in making jam. My mother, Edith Hollander Frank, went with him to Holland in September, while Margot and I were sent to Aachen to stay with our grandmother. Margot went to Holland in December, and I followed in February, when I was plunked down on the table as a birthday present for Margot.

I started right away at the Montessori nursery school. I stayed there until I was six, at which time I started first grade. In sixth grade my teacher was Mrs. Kuperus, the principal. At the end of the year we were both in tears as we said a heartbreaking farewell, because I'd been accepted at the Jewish Lyceum, where Margot also went to school.

Our lives were not without anxiety, since our relatives in Germany were suffering under Hitler's anti-Jewish laws. After the pogroms in 1938 my two uncles (my mother's brothers) fled Germany, finding safe refuge in North America. My elderly grandmother came to live with us. She was seventy-three years old at the time.

After May 1940 the good times were few and far between: first there was the war, then the capitulation and then the arrival of the Germans, which is when the trouble started for the Jews. Our freedom was severely restricted by a series of anti-Jewish decrees: Jews were required to wear a yellow star; Jews were required to turn in their bicycles; Jews were forbidden to use street-cars; Jews were forbidden to ride in cars, even their own; Jews were required to do their shopping between 3 and 5 PM; Jews were required to frequent only Jewish-owned barbershops and beauty parlors; Jews were forbidden to be out on the streets between 8 PM and 6 AM; Jews were forbidden to attend theaters, movies or any other forms of entertainment; Jews were forbidden to use swimming pools, tennis courts, hockey fields or any other athletic fields; Jews were forbidden to go rowing; Jews were forbidden to take part in any athletic activity in public; Jews were forbidden to sit in their gardens or those of their friends after 8 PM; Jews were forbidden to visit Christians in their homes; Jews were required to attend Jewish schools, etc. You couldn't do this and you couldn't do that, but life went on. Jacque always said to me, "I don't dare do anything anymore, 'because I'm afraid it's not allowed.'"

In the summer of 1941, Grandma got sick and had to have an operation, so my birthday passed with little celebration. In the summer of 1940, we didn't do much for my birthday either, since the fighting had just ended in Holland. Grandma died in January 1942. No one knows how often I think of her and still love her. This birthday celebration in 1942 was intended to make up for the others, and Grandma's candle was lit along with the rest.

The four of us are still doing well, and that brings me to the present date of June 20, 1942, and the solemn dedication of my diary.

Reading II

Look at the pictures below and guess the answers to these questions.

- a. Who are these people?
- b. What do you know about these people?

The Rautes

The Rautes are one of the most typical indigenous groups of Nepal sustaining their unique cultural identities for generations. They are the only nomadic people in the country who never settle permanently in any particular place. The Rautes deny any idea on permanent settlement, education or agriculture. The fact that the Rautes, the last fulltime nomads of Nepal, have survived into this century is truly remarkable in our current period of diminishing cultural diversity.

It is estimated that the total population of Rautes in Nepal is about 180, or roughly 52 families. The Karnali Province of Nepal remains their only sanctuary.

There is no documented history of the Rautes. But one common ground is that once they fled from the state, they never returned and established a different pattern of life in the jungle. To eke out their living, they mastered crafting of wooden products, learned to hunt monkeys, and adapted to forest life.

Only the Mukhiya of the Rautes, on behalf of their tribe, talks to outsiders regarding their lifestyle and tradition.

The Rautes bear traditional knowledge of living in a community. The heredity of the Raute is categorised into three types as Kalyaal, Raskoti and Samaal. It is therefore very important to note the various aspects of these people, such as their ethical norms and values, rituals and livelihood patterns.

At the time when acculturation has been widespread in the world with diminishing diversity, the Rautes have been quite successful in sustaining their tradition. Humanity has to learn a lot from the Rautes, since they have been very successful in preserving their tradition in today's world. Their maintenance of the nomadic culture in a rapidly globalising world is commendable. This global uniqueness makes them a precious part of the diverse people of Nepal.

Like any other ethnic group following the Hindu society, the Raute community also maintains a patriarchal social hierarchy. However, in matters of internal management, women have a more prominent role than that of their male counterparts. The Rautes maintain a clear division of labour between men and women. Most often the male members get involved in making wooden utensils, hunting monkeys, trading their products in the market, and collecting food grains. It is also common for unmarried girls and widows to go to the countryside and collect food grains and deliver the order for the craft items. Women in the Raute community bear the major responsibility in the household chores and dominate in almost every facet of the livelihood except in the areas of socialising, hunting, carpentry, and dancing. They have the indigenous know-how on spring water sources. Since it is a part of their job to search for medicinal herbs, firewood and vegetables in the jungle, they also have extensive knowledge of the forest and its ecosystem.

The husband and wife have great respect and love for each other. Married women never travel outside of their settlement area with anyone else other than their husbands. The women are mainly responsible for collecting firewood, cooking meals and rearing their children. They also may assist the males while shifting homes to new locations and building new homes there. The women do not participate in making wooden utensils and hunting as they are considered to be the male tasks. Children until the age of 10-14 are not assigned any major household responsibilities, they only spend their days playing with natural objects and roaming around the settlement. On special occasions, they may help their parents in fetching water from the spring and carrying small items while shifting to new locations.

Monkey hunting is considered fundamental to maintain the cultural permanence of the hunting life of the Rautes. Their hunting technique is also very rare in the sense that around 8-30 young and middle aged Raute members go hunting in a group with their nets. They do not use guns or bows and arrows for hunting.

The Rautes observe the festivals like Saune Sankranti, Dashain, Tihar, Chaite Dashain and Maghe Sankranti. For the celebrations, the Rautes manage food, homemade ale and meat in advance. As they enjoy complete participation in the community events, they do not like to meet strangers or travel beyond their settlement area during their celebration period. They take complete leave from carpentry and hunting during the festivals. These festivals are observed with much joy and fervour amidst singing, dancing, feasting and their own ritual performances. Rice, meat and drinks play an important role in their feast.

- Can you identify the players? Name them.

Wimbledon

Wimbledon is the world's oldest tennis tournament and is also thought to be the most prestigious. It has been held at the All England Club in Wimbledon, London since 1877. It is one of the four Grand Slam tennis tournaments, the others being the Australian Open, the French Open and the US Open. Wimbledon is the only major still played on traditional grass, the game's original surface, which gave the game its original name of 'lawn tennis'.

Events

Wimbledon consists of five main events and five junior events. There are also five invitation events in which some former professionals are invited back to compete. The five main events are gentlemen's singles, ladies' singles, gentlemen's doubles, ladies' doubles and mixed doubles. The five junior events are similar with boys' singles, girls' singles, boys' doubles, girls' doubles and disabled doubles. The five invitational events are the gentlemen's doubles, senior gentlemen's doubles, senior ladies' doubles, gentlemen's wheelchair doubles and ladies' wheelchair doubles.

Tickets

The majority of Centre Court tickets are made available through a public ballot in which applicants are chosen at random by a computer. Fans without tickets can queue up overnight to get seats on match day. There are a certain number of seats allocated for the queuing system.

Schedule

Currently, Wimbledon begins in June and ends in July. But in 2017, the championships began and ended in July to extend the gap between the tournament and the French Open. The five main events span both weeks, but the junior and invitational events are mainly held during the second week. Traditionally, there is no play on the 'Middle Sunday', however, rain has sometimes forces play on this day.

The Courts

In 2009, Wimbledon's Centre Court was fitted with a retractable roof helping to substantially reduce the loss of playing time caused by bad weather. The principal court, Centre Court, was opened in 1922. The main show courts, Centre Court and No. 1 Court, are normally used for only two weeks a year during the championships, but play can extend into a third week in exceptional circumstances. The remaining 17 courts are regularly used for other events hosted by the club.

Trophies and Prize Money

The gentlemen's Singles Champion receives a silver gilt cup. The trophy has been awarded since 1887 and bears the inscription: 'All England Lawn Tennis Club Single Handed Championship of the World.' The Women's Singles Champion receives a sterling silver salver which is decorated with figures from mythology. In 2019, the prize money for the winners of the singles finals was £2.35 million.

A Few Famous Champions

Martina Navratilova won a record nine Wimbledon Singles titles. To date, Roger Federer has won Wimbledon eight times. Novak Djokovic was the winner of the Gentlemen's Singles in 2019. He defeated Roger Federer in the 'most demanding' match ever in the final. He was able to defend his trophy as a defending champion. It was his sixteenth Grand Slam Men's Singles title and his fifth Wimbledon title. In the Ladies' Singles event, Simona Halep won the first Wimbledon title with stunning performance against Serena Williams in 2019. It was her second Grand Slam Women's Singles title.

Pronunciation

Read the following part of the poem "The Chaos" by Gerard Nolst Trenité. Try to pronounce each word correctly.

Dearest creature in creation,
Study English pronunciation.
I will teach you in my verse
Sounds like corpse, corps, horse, and worse.
I will keep you, Suzy, busy,
Make your head with heat grow dizzy.
Tear in eye, your dress will tear.
So shall I! Oh hear my prayer.

Just compare heart, beard, and heard,
Dies and diet, lord and word,
Sword and sward, retain and Britain.
(Mind the latter, how it's written.)

Now I surely will not plague you
With such words as plaque and ague.
But be careful how you speak:
Say break and steak, but bleak and streak;
Cloven, oven, how and low,
Script, receipt, show, poem, and toe.

Hear me say, devoid of trickery,
Daughter, laughter, and Terpsichore,
Typhoid, measles, topsails, aisles,
Exiles, similes, and reviles;
Scholar, vicar, and cigar,
Solar, mica, war and far;
One, anemone, Balmoral,
Kitchen, lichen, laundry, laurel;
Gertrude, German, wind and mind,
Scene, Melpomene, mankind.

Reading II

Answer the following questions.

- a. Which sports do you play or do? Why?
- b. Why is sports important for us?

Sports

There are many different kinds of sports that are undertaken by a wide variety of different people. Some people do sport for their career and other people purely do sport for enjoyment and recreation. Some sports, like cricket, require the use of a lot of equipment, while others need very little in order to successfully play a game in that sport. Some people use public playing fields to play sport for free, while other sports such as squash, tennis, badminton and table tennis are usually paid for on an hourly basis in the comfort of a local leisure centre.

Most sports are played with a round object often known as a ball. Some sports use more than one ball and snooker is one of the unique sports that make use of a number of balls while being played. The game itself is often controlled by an impartial individual known as an umpire in cricket and a referee in sports like football and rugby. Most sports have a duration of not more than a few hours, however some athletic tournaments can last for up to a week and a game of cricket can be five days in duration before a winner is announced.

Some people prefer to watch sports. This can either be done by going to a stadium, a local leisure centre, park or on television. It is often cheaper to watch sports from the comfort of a person's home than to visit the stadium or a special event. Some sports, such as football and cricket, are really popular in the United Kingdom but not in the USA. In the USA people often play basketball and baseball. However, most countries put aside time to compete in world sporting events such as the football world cup or the Olympics, which occur every four years.

Nowadays, people who have any kind of disability also participate in sports and most sport equipment is adapted to suit the needs of the disabled person. This means sport is something that can be enjoyed no matter the physical nature of the person. The Para-olympics takes place a week after the main event and it is equally popular. Participation in sporting activity is encouraged by doctors and schools. It is for this reason and the competitive nature of individuals that sport remains a very popular activity worldwide.

Movie Review: 'Chasing Ice'

Title	: Chasing Ice
Genre	: Documentary, Biography
Language	: English
Director	: Jeff Orlowski
Producer	: Jerry Aronson, Paula Dupré Pesmen, Jeff Orlowski
Writer	: Mark Monroe
Release Date	: Aug 10, 2016
Runtime	: 1h 14m
Produced by	: Diamond Docs, Exposure

In the wake of Hurricane Sandy, the power and unpredictability of nature and the ever-changing weather patterns have become increasingly apparent. As topics such as weather and global warming become increasingly prevalent in today's culture, James Balog's documentary Chasing Ice provides striking images of how climate change has caused glacial erosion.

The award-winning movie which opens in Los Angeles on Nov. 23, traces the journey of environmental photographer Balog as he attempts to capture the erosion of glaciers in the Arctic through photographs and video. In order to accomplish this goal, Balog started his own project and dubbed it in the Extreme Ice Survey. This endeavor began as a project for National Geographic and turned out to reach a broader scope by tackling the problem of glacial erosion.

Balog's survey began with a total of 25 cameras that were to be monitored over the course of three years. The cameras were housed in protective units in order to prevent their destruction in the harsh Arctic weather, and Balog's team periodically downloaded the footage.

After having photographed glaciers in the past, Balog says in the film that he wanted to return to some of the same places he had visited to see how the glaciers had changed. He and his team set up cameras in Greenland, Iceland, Alaska and Montana's Glacier National Park.

The documentary begins with a series of striking and intense video clips of multiple natural disasters. Balog establishes the goal of the film from the very beginning by explaining his own initial skepticism regarding climate change and academic research on this topic. This makes Balog more relatable and increases his credibility as a photojournalist who ends up finding evidence for what he once doubted was actually occurring.

This documentary effectively combines data and scientific facts with visually appealing images that make climate change more real. Balog's photographs and time-lapse footage of glaciers "calving" or breaking apart into icebergs, allow viewers to see and experience what is actually happening in these zones. The bigger the screen, the better to view the beautiful images that Balog has captured, many of which most people will never have the chance to experience in person.

Balog also refrains from overwhelming his audience with too many scientific details and makes the data easy to understand. He explains his methods and how he interprets his results without coming across as boring. It is hard to watch an avalanche on screen or see the extreme erosion of glaciers over a short period of time and not realise that Balog is clearly onto something.

The film also incorporates a sense of the extreme lengths that Balog and his team, including a glaciologist and a climatologist, were willing to go to capture footage of this glacial erosion. There are scenes in which Balog cries out in disappointment when some cameras are not working and other moments when he puts himself in quite precarious positions as he descends into holes and caves of ice in order to get the best shot. Not to mention the knee surgery that threatens to keep him from ice hiking on his journey.

Chasing Ice is definitely a worthwhile documentary that combines intriguing theories and exquisite images. Those who are skeptical about theories on the environment might be reluctant to see the film, but there is still something to be gained from Balog's research. Balog and his team make viewers think critically about climate change and what it can mean for our future.

B. Rewrite the following paragraph using the verbs in future tense.

Visiting Her Majesty

I travelled to London to visit the Queen of England. I disguised myself as a prince and walked into Buckingham Palace. After receiving directions from a chambermaid, I stepped into the Queen's bedroom and surprised Her Royal Highness with a hearty slap on the back. Then, of course, I tipped my hat, bowed, and delivered the usual compliments. After uncorking a bottle of champagne, we exchanged pleasantries and talked about our families for more than an hour. I showed her my photograph album and my stamp collection. She showed me her historic collection of jewels. After a thoroughly entertaining visit, I traded email addresses with Her Majesty and then kissed her goodbye—on the fingertips of her white gloves, of course.

Writing I

Write a short review of your favourite movie. You may use the movie review in Reading I as a model.

Reading II

Look at the picture and answer the following questions.

- Where do you think the man is?
- How old do you think he is?
- What might he be doing?

A Noisy Party

Ramila : Hey, Silu's Papa! Wake up!

Ramesh : Eh! What? What's the matter? It can't be eight o'clock already.

Ramila : No, it's half past one. It's those people next door again. Listen.

Ramesh : Oh, yes. I think they are having another party.

Ramila : Listen to that. I'm sure they are waking up the whole street. Nobody can sleep through that noise. It's disgusting! Somebody should call the police! Hey, wake up!

Ramesh : Eh! I wasn't asleep dear. I'm pretty sure that they are laughing. They must be having a good time! They never invite us, do they?

(After some time)

Ramila : Silu's Papa!

Ramesh : Yes, dear. What is it now?

Ramila : Listen! They are leaving.

Ramesh : Thank goodness for that! Maybe we will get some sleep.

Ramila : I hope so. It's nearly three o'clock. Goodnight dear.

Ramesh . Oh, hell! What's that? They are having a row now.

Ramila : I'm not surprised. They always have rows after parties.

Ramesh : I'm certain that they are throwing pots and pans again.

Ramila : No, I'm sure that was a plate dear, maybe the TV. They'll be sorry in the morning.

(After some time)

Ramila : Silu's Papa! Listen. There's someone in the garden next door.

Ramesh : Eh! It must be the milkman.

Ramila : No. I am certain it's not him. It's too early. Who could it be? You'd better have a look.

Ramesh : All right. Gosh! It's Mr Dahal and there is no doubt that he's carrying a spade.

Ramila : Oh, no! You don't think he has killed her, do you?

Ramesh : If he's killed her, he might be burying the body.

Ramila : What? You don't think so, do you?

Ramesh : He can't be planting potatoes, can he? Shall I call the police?

Ramila : No, ask him what he's doing first!

Ramesh : Hello, there, Mr Dahal. You are up early this morning.

Dahal : I haven't been to bed yet. We had a party last night. I hope we didn't keep you awake.

Ramesh : Oh, no. We didn't hear anything, nothing at all.

Dahal : Well, it was a pretty noisy party. My wife knocked over the goldfish tank while we were clearing up. The poor fish died. I'm just burying them before the children wake up.

Listening

A. Look at the following pictures. They represent various weather conditions. Choose correct adjectives from the box and write them below the pictures.

windy	cloudy	rainy	sunny	snowy	foggy
-------	--------	-------	-------	-------	-------

- B. Listen to the audio and match the beginnings of the sentences (a-e) with the sentence endings (A-F). Write your answers in the column provided. There is an example at the beginning.

Example	Different people	E
a.	The people in England
b.	The weather in England
c.	The people in Dubai
d.	The weather in Dubai
e.	Global warming

A	don't think about the weather much.
B	is almost the same the whole year.
C	are always concerned about the weather there.
D	is changing weather patterns.
E	think differently about the weather.
F	is very changeable.

Grammar II

- A. Change the following statements into questions, asking for information as indicated in the brackets.

- They went to Spain last week. (When)
- Mr Chaudhari lives in Pokhara. (Where)
- I finally discovered the truth. (What)
- She wants to learn the English language to find a better job. (Why)
- They are having lunch now. (What)
- You can send the application by mail. (How)
- They have informed the police about the incident. (Whom)
- The Smiths sold the house where they had lived for five years. (Which)

B. Change the following questions into indirect speech. Use the given sentence starters.

- a. "Where are you from?"

My new friend asked me.....

- b. "Where is the nearest bank?"

The stranger enquired

- c. "What have you been doing until now?"

My mother wanted to know.....

- d. They said, "How long have you been living here?"

They asked

- e. "Who is the Prime Minister of Canada?"

My brother wanted to know

- f. "What does your father do?"

Rohan enquired

- g. "Where were you living before you came here?"

She asked me.....

- h. "Who will bell the cat?"

The old mouse asked

- i. "What time does the train leave?"

She wanted to know.....

- j. "How could you desert me?"

She wondered

C. Collect at least ten statements and change them into wh-questions. Swap with a partner and check each other's answers.

Writing II

- A. Read the following notice and underline all the important information.

Shree Janajagriti Secondary School

Bhanu-10, Tanahun

14 June 2021

Notice

This is to notify all the students and parents that the school will remain closed from 15th June 2021 to 15th July 2021 for the summer vacation.

Regular classes will resume from 16th June 2021.

Head Teacher

- B. Imagine, your school is organising an Inter-house Spelling Contest next week. Prepare a short announcement notice on behalf of your head teacher.

Project work

Work in groups. Prepare some illustrations depicting the impact of global warming on the environment. Then, display the illustrations on the walls of your classroom. Review the other groups' work and provide feedback.

Linking Verbs

A linking verb connects the subject of a sentence with a word that gives information about the subject, such as a condition or relationship. They do not show any action; they simply link the subject with the rest of the sentence. For example, in the sentence "The ball is red." 'is' is a linking verb that connects the subject, ball, to information about that subject.

Linking Verbs: be (is, are, ...), become, seem, feel, sound, taste, look, smell, appear, remain, stay, prove, turn, etc.

Wright Brothers

Wilbur (1867-1912) and Orville Wright (1871-1948) were brothers. They lived in Dayton, Ohio, USA. Their father, Milton, was a bishop in the Church of the United Brethren in Christ. Their mother, Susan, made toys for her children and encouraged their curiosity. One day, Milton Wright brought home a small toy "helicopter" made of wood with two twisted rubber bands to turn a small propeller. Wilbur and Orville played with it until it broke, and then made new copies of the toy themselves. They also sold toys to their friends, including handmade kites. The Wright brothers did things together from the time they were small boys.

The Wright brothers went into the printing business together in 1889. Three years later, they opened their first bicycle shop. Initially, they sold and repaired bicycles. They would replace spokes, fix broken chains, and sell accessories. In 1896, they began to build their own brand of bicycles. Their experiences with bicycles aided them in the investigations of flight. They used the technology they learned from their bicycle business in their airplanes: chains, sprockets, spoke wires, ball bearings, and wheel hubs. Their thoughts on balancing and controlling their aircraft were also rooted in their experience as cyclists.

Orville and Wilbur Wright were convinced of the need to control an aircraft in three axes of motion. An elevator, or horizontal control surface, in front of the wings on their aircraft, enabled the pilot to control climb and descent. The elevator was controlled by a lever in the pilot's left hand. A "wing warping" system controlled the aircraft in a roll. To initiate a roll, the pilot would shift his hips from side to side in a cradle on the lower wing, "twisting" the wings left or right or restoring them to level flight. Orville and Wilbur developed this idea from observing birds in flight. They observed the buzzards keeping their balance by twisting their wings and sometimes curving one wing more than the other. In 1902, the brothers added a vertical rudder to the rear of their machine to control the left and right motion of the nose of the aircraft.

The Wright brothers began their aeronautical research in 1899. Their first aircraft was a small kite with a 5-foot wingspan that was used to test their notions of aircraft control. In 1900, they built their first machine designed to carry a pilot and chose Kitty Hawk, N.C., as a suitable testing ground. With its strong steady winds, open areas, and tall sandy dunes, the area was perfect for their experiments. When their 1900 aircraft produced less lift than expected, the Wright brothers flew it as a kite and gathered information that would enable them to design improved machines. They returned to Kitty Hawk in 1901 with a new glider that did not perform as they expected. While they had learned a great deal with their first two machines, they had also encountered new puzzles and dangers.

To simulate flight conditions, the Wrights tested small model wings in a wind tunnel they had built. The wind tunnel was a box with a fan at one end that blew a steady stream of air over model wings mounted on a special "balance" inside the tunnel. Using this device, the brothers were able to gather information that could be used to design the wings of the gliders and powered aircraft that would carry them into the air. The wind tunnel provided them with information on the most satisfactory wing shape. It also enabled them to calculate the size of wing that would be required to lift them into the air, the performance of their propellers, and the amount of power that their engine would have to produce.

They based the design of their next glider on this information.

During the 1901 glider tests, the Wright brothers had discovered that "wing warping" created unequal drag on the two wings. The key to solving the control problem was the addition of a rudder to the glider design in 1902. They developed a direct linkage between the rudder and warping system. With the success of this system design, the Wrights were ready to move onto a powered aircraft.

At Kill Devil Hills, N.C., at 10:35 am, the Wright 1903 Flyer took off under its own power with Orville as the pilot. It flew 12 seconds and went a distance of 37 metres. Orville and Wilbur took turns making three more flights that morning. Wilbur was at the controls for the fourth and longest flight, traveling 260 meters in 59 seconds. The Wright 1903 Flyer became the first powered, heavier-than-air machine to achieve controlled, sustained flight with a pilot aboard. Today, this amazing flying invention can be viewed as it is suspended overhead, at the National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C.

Having achieved success in North Carolina, the Wright brothers decided to continue their experiments closer to home. They built and flew their second powered airplane at Huffman Prairie, a pasture eight miles east of Dayton, Ohio. Progress was slow without the strong, steady winds of Kitty Hawk, but the brothers did achieve the first circular flight of an airplane on September 20, 1904. This first complete circle flight lasted only 1 minute 36 seconds and covered 1,244 metres. Stability problems still plagued their invention. The modifications made during 1904 helped but did not solve the stability problem.

This Flyer was the world's first practical airplane. During more than 40 flights at Huffman Prairie, the machine was repeatedly banked, turned, circled, and flown in figure eights. On two occasions the flight exceeded half an hour. Wilbur and Orville Wright, brilliant self-trained engineers, had overcome complex technical problems that had barred the way to mechanical flight for centuries. Think about how their invention has changed our world.

A. The meanings of the words are given below. Find the words from the text above.

- a. a..... equipment that are useful but not essential
- b. d..... an action of going down
- c. a..... connected with the science or practice of building and flying aircraft
- d. s..... fixed in a place or position, supported or balanced; constant
- e. e..... a scientific procedure undertaken to make a discovery
- f. p..... to cause pain or trouble to somebody over a period of time

B. Match the following words with the appropriate pictures. (Write a, b, c or d below the picture.)

a. propeller

b. spokes

c. elevator

d. buzzard

C. State whether the following statements are true or false.

- a. The Wright brothers sold copies of toy helicopters at the market.

- b. They had a printing business in their cycle shop.
- c. The experience of cycling helped them to generate ideas for controlling and balancing aircraft.
- d. The wing warping system controls the aircraft in a roll.
- e. They learned more about balancing by watching other aircraft fly.
- f. Their first experimentation was with a kite.
- g. Wilbur Wright was the pilot of their 1903 Flyer.
- h. Their aircraft could only fly straight.

D. Put the following events from the text above in chronological order.

- a. Their first Flyer took off under its own power with a pilot.
- b. The Wright brothers opened a cycle shop.
- c. The Wright brothers developed a machine overcoming complex technical problems.
- d. Milton Wright brought home a toy helicopter.
- e. Wright brothers built their first machine designed to carry a pilot.
- f. The children made copies of the toy helicopter.
- g. The Wright brothers began their aeronautical research.
- h. The Wright brothers started a printing business.

E. Answer the following questions.

- a. What services did the Wright brothers offer from the cycle shop?
- b. How did their cycle business help them to build an aircraft?
- c. How did the brothers develop the idea of balance and control in the flight of an aircraft?
- d. What was their first aircraft like?
- e. What did they do to create the flight conditions?
- f. What is "wing warping"?
- g. When and where did the first Flyer take off?
- h. What progress had they made by 1904?
- i. What was the world's first practical airplane like?

- F. What improvements have been made to aircraft since the time of Wright brothers to the modern day? Discuss.

Speaking

- A. Talk about the following animals using suitable forms of adjectives as in the example.

Example: bear/wolf/dangerous

A: Which animal is more dangerous?

B: I think the wolf is more dangerous than the bear.

- a. bear/tiger/snail (aggressive)
- b. elephant/giraffe (tall)

Rickshaw Ride

That man by the harbour
Spitting into the water
Is as old as China.

He is made of leather
And his folded face
Is like a sandbar
At low tide.
Will you take a ride
On his rickshaw?

He will not thank you
For your dollar,
He knows that to you
A dollar does not matter.
Off you go with a clatter
Up to Victoria
On up the long hill
Pass the cathedral
To the peak Tram

Pull! Pull!
He leans to it
His muscles at neck and calf and shoulder
And his dark veins that snake
Take your eye
Not what passes by.
Let him not break
Something for my sake,
For my dollar.

You went to Hong Kong
They will say.
Did you take a rickshaw?
Was it fun?
Did he run, your rickshaw man

Yes, he ran.
No, it was not much fun.
